12 Hours In Pacific

10 Navy Airmen Rescued At Sea

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Ten wet and weary Navy airmen were plucked unharmed from the tossing Pacific Ocean early today, nearly 12 hours after they had ditched their twin-engined patrol plane.

A massive rescue operation went like clockwork, despite foul weather, darkness, fog and the fliers' position—110 miles off the mouth of the Columbia River.

The ten, crammed into a pair of well-outfitted rubber liferafts, were pulled to safety aboard the Coast Guard cutter Yocona from Astoria, Ore. The freighter Olympic Pioneer had reached the scene only moments before and stood by as the men were hauled from the sea at 4:50 a. m., EDT.

Hovering above were four Navy and Coast Guard planes, their powerful searchlights cutting through a heavy overcast onto the drama enfolding below.

The cutter radioed Coast Guard headquarters here that the airmen, three officers and seven enlisted men, were in good condition but suffering from exposure and exhaustion. None was injured in the ditching or during the tricky transfer from the liferafts to the cutter.

The freighter, which had changed course toward the fliers while en route up the coast to Seattle, was allowed to proceed after a "well done" from the Coast Guard.

Rescue operations moved into full speed as soon as the P5M patrol plane radioed an SOS that one of its two engines was afire. The craft, a Marlin, was on a routine coastal patrol from Whidbey Island, Wash., Naval Air Station.

The plane steadily lost altitude as its pilot, Lt. James B. Henson, 27, of Pearchy, Ark., fought desperately to make it to land. Henson finally sent word he had to ditch, radioed his position and the craft slapped down.

It remained afloat long enough for the men to clamber aboard the rafts, which are equipped with food, water, radios, flares, radar reflectors, paddles and foul weather canopies.

Seven merchant ships in the general area answered a call for assistance from the Coast Guard. The Olympic Pioneer, closest to the scene, was chosen to head for the downed fliers.

The downed men radioed at one time that they were okay. "We're wet, that's all," they told the aircraft circling above them.

The 10 were identified by officials at the Whidbey Island station as Henson, Lt. (JG) Donald T. McClosky, 26, co-pilot, Belleville, N.J.; Lt. (JG) Walter E. White Jr., 25, navigator, Havertown, Pa.; Chief Aviation Machinists' Mate Jack Bostick, 34, Hoffman, N.C.; Aviation Machinists' Mate 1.C. Clarence R. Judge Dismisses 2 Counts

Neff Denies Fund Charges To Open Kickback Defense

BEAVER — Samuel G. Neff, former Pennsylvania state senator and Beaver County Democratic chairman, took the stand today as the first witness for the defense and denied collecting any "kickbacks" in the county division of the State Highway Department or even organizing such a scheme.

Neff replied "absolutely not!" when asked if he had ever approached any contractor leasing equipment to the highway department for a contribution based on 5 per cent of his contract.

In regard to a meeting in December 1955 when the scheme was supposedly hatched, Neff said Edward Nitsche may have been at such a meeting but", I am quite sure I wasn't there." Nitsch was also indicted but turned state's evidence.

Neff testified that he met Nitsche in the summer of 1955 and that he was a holdover from the previous administration whose capacity was limited since he was one of four construction foremen. "If such an important meeting was held, Supt. Edward Corcoran, (whom Neff sponsored) would surely have been present," Neff said.

Three others charged along with Neff are Robert Yoho, James Macry and Leon Kaleta.

Judge Morgan H. Sohn Friday afternoon dismissed two of four counts against Neff.

Judge Sohn said he felt the prosecution failed to show evidence that Neff had continued to use his influence as manager of the State Workingmen's Insurance Fund to obtain kickbacks after losing out as county chairman. Charges 3 and 4 were dismissed.

The court ruled, after extensive arguments by District Atty. Richard P. Steward and Atty. Louis Glasso, Neff's counsel, that the jury should decide whether the defendants were guilty of extortion

All 16 Aboard Killed In Aleutian Air Crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A ground party which clawed its way up an unnamed peak in the wild Aleutian Islands Friday reported that all 16 persons aboard had been killed when an airliner smashed into the mountain Thursday night.

Only the tail section of the Reeve Aleutian Airways DC4 remained intact after the four-engined craft exploded into flames on impact at the 2,000-foot level of the mountain, on Great Sitkin Island, a volcanic island 24 miles northeast of Adak.

USW Chief Breaks Off Steel Talks

Industry's Leading Negotiator Willing To Resume Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel industry's top negotiator in the 74-day-old strike says he's ready to resume talks here Monday. But Steelworkers President David J. McDonald says he's through talking in New York.

Chief Federal Mediator Joseph F. Finnegan plans to meet during the weekend in Washington with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell to review the stalemate. Finnegan indicated the talks might be shifted from New York when they resume, but he didn't say where.

McDonald broke off the negotiations here Friday, calling the sessions a "farcical filibuster." He said he would resume only when management offers something "worthy of consideration by self-respecting steel workers."

Chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper said: "We hope that the union will reconsider its position and join with us then in a renewed effort to break the deadlock. This (New York) has been our agreed seat of negotiations. We plan to be here. We want to bargain and we want to reach an agreement."

Asked if the union would resume talks if the government requests it, McDonald said: "We have never resisted a call of our government. But we see no sense in coming back to New York City. The seat of the government is in Washington. The seat of the steel industry is in Pittsburgh."

The strike, which started July 14, has idled more than 500,000 steelworkers and thousands of workers in related industries. The union is seeking unspecified wage increases. But management has argued that wage increases would result in an increase in the price of steel and further inflation. The union says the wage increases should come from steel profits.

Laos Willing To Accept UN Way In Strife

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laos is prepared to accept whatever solution is offered by the United Nations to control the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebellion, Premier Phoui Sananikone declared today.

He indicated Laos does not intend to ask for aid from the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization or other groups or countries unless there is "aggravation of the situation by Communists from outside the country."

"If the rebels are alone in their attacks, they'll last only several months," the Premier told a newspaper correspondent. "The army will destroy them easily."

But he compared the rebels to termites who sometimes do unexpected damage. He added that unless North Viet Nam "decides to cease its direct and indirect support of the rebels the situation here will remain menacing."

Former Officer Claims Legion Slots Got $185

Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland will try a civil action Monday night in which a former East Liverpool policeman, Glenn (Curly) Montgomery, claims Chester American Legion Post 121 "obtained money by false pretenses" in that he poured $185 into the post's slot machines but got nothing back but lemons.

The post reportedly claims his losses totaled only $90. Attorneys have been retained by both sides. Montgomery now resides on Salineville R. D. 1.

Underworld Kingpin And Woman Slain

Little Augue Pisano, Capone Henchman, Victim In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Underworld kingpin Anthony (Little Augie Pisano) Carfano, 62, and a married beauty queen were shot to death Friday night in a flashy black Cadillac in a quietly substantial Queens neighborhood.

Carfano, the pudgy Prohibition era henchman of Al Capone and long-time buddy of Frank Costello, and Janice Drake, 32, who was married to comedian Allan Drake, were shot from the rear of the gangsters's swanky car. In 1943, as Janice Hansen, she won a Palisades Park beauty contest. She was Miss New Jersey of 1944.

The auto, apparently moving at the time, veered onto a curb in the Jackson Heights section of Queens about a half mile from LaGuardia Field.

Neighbors told police they saw two men flee from the car after they heard shots. No weapon was found. Carfano was shot twice in the back of the head and once in his left cheek. Mrs. Drake, the mother of a 13 - year - old boy, Michael, was shot in the back of the neck and in the right temple.

Carfano, short and pot - bellied, wore a dark blue silk suit. His pockets were stuffed with money. Mrs. Drake, who was linked with another murder seven years ago, wore a smart blue cocktail dress and a mink stole. Police said there were reports the two had been seen earlier at a hotel near LaGuardia.

Police said two weapons were used—.32 and .38 caliber revolvers. Carfano's trousers pockets bulged with $1,500 in 50- and 100-dollar bills and $433 in smaller bills. He was identified from his auto license.

Mrs. Drake, who lived at 63-60 102nd St., Forest Hills, Queens, was identified from labels in her clothes. In 1952, she was questioned in connection with the slaying of playboy dress manufacturer Nat Nelson. She was released after she told police she had dated Nelson the night before his death.

Her husband, who had been appearing at the Lotus Club in Washington with singer Tony Martin, was notified of Mrs. Drake's death and was en route to New York.

The swanky car was headed south on 94th Street, a main thoroughfare, near 24th Avenue. The bodies were taken to Queens General Hospital morgue for autopsies.

Carfano, who lived in a palatial mansion in Long Beach, on Long Island, was a familiar name in underworld investigations for the past 35 years.

Ceylon Head Dies

Assassin's Bullets Fatal To Premier

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike 60, died today from an assassin's bullets — apparent victim of the struggle between Eastern and Western ways which swept him into power 3½ years ago.

The frail champion of Asian neutralism succumbed almost on the eve of a visit to the United States, which only a few months ago he termed Asia's best friend.

Wijayananda Dahanayake, 57, a politician from Bandaranaike's cabinet, was sworn in as the new prime minister. Dahanayake in the past has ranged the political spectrum from revolutionary red to conservative blue.

His most recent exploit was to force the resignation of Marxist ministers of food and industries from the cabinet.

British - educated Bandaranaike failed to survive a five-hour operation to remove three bullets which pierced his liver, spleen and arm.

Gov. Gen. Sir Oliver Goonetilleke, one of Britain's last remaining links with Ceylon, proclaimed a state of emergency on the island until the uncertain political situation is clarified.

On his deathbed, the mild-mannered Prime Minister forgave his accused assassin — a professed Buddhist medical monk, who whipped out a revolver and fired as Bandaranaike bowed in reverence to him.

The monk and another man clad in saffron monk's robes had called at the Prime Minister's private bungalow in a luxurious Colombo residential area Friday morning.

The gunman reportedly was angered by the Prime Minister's refusal to go all the way in shedding Western ways in favor of ancient Eastern medical techniques known as "Ayurveda."

The assassin was shot by a sentry while trying to flee and was captured. He identified himself at the hospital as Talduwa Sovarama, 43, a specialist in Eastern style medicine. He was being guarded in the hospital ward by 35 policemen.

Police today seized a Buddhist monk, G. Pannasekera Thero of Colombo, who was accused of being with the gunman. Police questioned several monks throughout the night in an effort to determine the motive.

A reliable source said that 15 minutes before Bandaranaike died he turned to his wife and asked whether she knew why the "monk had shot him."

Addresses Youngstown Club

Governor Confirms Start Of Lake Road In 2 Years

Present priorities for the proposed Ohio River-Lake Erie highway, linking East Liverpool and Ashtabula, were confirmed by Gov. Michael DiSalle Friday at Youngstown when he told the Kiwanis Club there the project will be started within the next two years.

The first stretch to be built will include 8.7 miles, with another 12.7 miles to be constructed within the subsequent two years, the governor said. These sections, adding up to 21.4 miles, will cost about 37 million dollars.

DiSalle said the entire road, which he termed as "highly important" because of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, will cost about 140 million dollars. The highway would be a link between the seaway and the Ohio River.

The governor also revealed plans that could cut the cost of caring for aged mental patients by more than half. He said the state would attempt to clear aged patients from mental hospitals by placing them on the aid for the aged rolls.

The average cost for caring for a senile patient in the hospitals is $1,200 to $1,500 a year while the cost to the state of putting the same patient on aid for the aged would be about $480, DiSalle estimated.

About 25 per cent of Ohio's 38,000 mental patients are aged and considered not subject to psychiatric care.

The aid for the aged program is supported equally by state and federal grants. The ceiling of $65 a month for the payments was removed this year by the Legislature, which also removed the requirement that recipients be citizens.

Rogers Youth Pinned Under Auto In Upset

2 Motorists Cited In Other Accidents On County Highway

A Rogers youth was hospitalized with injuries suffered when pinned under his car after it rolled just a few miles from his home Friday night at 9:10. Two other accidents were investigated yesterday by the Lisbon State Highway Patrol.

George Barnhouse, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dale Barnhouse of Rogers, suffered a spinal injury in the mishap on County Rd. 428—the Clarkson - Rogers Rd. — a tenth of a mile south of the intersection of County Rd. 429.

It was reported that the front tire blew out, causing the youth to lose control. He was thrown from the vehicle which then rolled on him.

Barnhouse first was taken to Salem Central Clinic for treatment and then transferred to Youngstown South Side Hospital where he underwent surgery early this morning. He was reported in "fair" condition. Barnhouse also suffered cuts and bruises, hospital authorities said. Barnhouse was headed for a Grange dance at Clarkson, friends said.

In other mishaps, Grace A. Milburn, 39, of Kensington was cited for reckless operation after her car struck the rear of one driven by Charles D. Barrett, 54, of East Liverpool R. D. 2 on Route 30 about a mile south of Route 7 yesterday afternoon at 3:10. Officers said Barrett had slowed for traffic.

The patrol said the woman's car was heavily damaged.

William A. Wallace, 45, of Beloit R. D. 2 was cited for passing without the assured clear distance when his station wagon sideswiped a car driven by H. L. Schiff, 39, of Belmar N. J., at 9:20 a. m. on Route 162 about 2 miles west of Salem. Minor damage resulted to both cars, officers said.

CINCINNATI (AP)—The national commander of the Civil Air Patrol says his outfit has about 6,000 aircraft available including 5,000 planes owned privately by its members. Brig. Gen. S. D. McElroy, here for the CAP Great Lakes Region conference, also said Friday the CAP has taken over some search and rescue tasks formerly done by the Air Force.

Other Critical Cold War Issues Will Be Aired At Meeting

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower and Soviet Prime Minister Nikita S. Khrushchev today began a problem-by-problem debate of critical cold war issues.

The second round of their historic dicussions began in Eisenhower's hideaway on a mountain-top surrounded by low-hanging clouds.

Meeting in Eisenhower's lodge Aspen at Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, the two leaders could see only a few yards through the picture window of their conference room.

The critical East-West dispute over the future of West Berlin as well as the broader problem of divided Germany had a high priority on the agenda of the day's session.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev, who began their talks early Friday night after a helicopter flight from Washington to Camp David, met for the first time this morning at the breakfast table and immediately "began their informal conversations."

This start on the day's work—with the world watching for the results to be announced Sunday—was reported to newsmen at the Gettysburg press center by Mrs. Anne Wheaton of the White House press office.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty and Asst. Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding arranged a full report on the morning session around midday.

The Khrushchev - Eisenhower breakfast talk reportedly lasted an hour or less in the living room of Aspen lodge.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived by automobile at Camp David at 9:45 a.m. EDT, to join in the talks.

The Vice President originally had planned to travel from Washington by helicopter, but had to switch to an automobile because of a heavy fog shrouding Camp David.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev will come to grips at their conference with cold war problems that have kept the world in turmoil and periodically threatened nuclear disaster for more than a decade.

U.N. Fearing New Tension In Tibet Case

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —A drive for a full-scale debate on Tibet stirred concern in the United Nations today that East-West tensions will be tightened up again.

Diplomats also feared the move will dredge up the whole question of Red China's representation in the United Nations. The Assembly voted only a few days ago to shelve the Red China issue for another year.

Ireland and Malaya disclosed Friday that they plan to call for a resolution charging Red China with killing freedom in Tibet and "respect for mental human rights" for the Tibetans.

One delegate predicted that as soon as the request to put the Tibetan issue on the agenda hits the 21-nation Steering Committee, demands will arise that Red China be invited here to give her side of the case.

The United States and other Western nations presumably would oppose any move to invite Peiping as they have done when the Korean question was debated here.

The move to bring in Tibet came after an appeal for United Nations help from the Dalai Lama, self-exiled ruler of the Himalayan nation.

It was reported that the front tire blew out, causing the youth to lose control. He was thrown from the vehicle which then rolled on him.

Barnhouse first was taken to Salem Central Clinic for treatment and then transferred to Youngstown South Side Hospital where he underwent surgery early this morning. He was reported in "fair" condition. Barnhouse also suffered cuts and bruises, hospital authorities said. Barnhouse was headed for a Grange dance at Clarkson, friends said.

In other mishaps, Grace A. Milburn, 39, of Kensington was cited for reckless operation after her car struck the rear of one driven by Charles D. Barrett, 54, of East Liverpool R. D. 2 on Route 30 about a mile south of Route 7 yesterday afternoon at 3:10. Officers said Barrett had slowed for traffic.

The patrol said the woman's car was heavily damaged.

William A. Wallace, 45, of Beloit R. D. 2 was cited for passing without the assured clear distance when his station wagon sideswiped a car driven by H. L. Schiff, 39, of Belmar N. J., at 9:20 a. m. on Route 162 about 2 miles west of Salem. Minor damage resulted to both cars, officers said.

Judge Dismisses 2 Counts

Neff Denies Fund Charges To Open Kickback Defense

BEAVER — Samuel G. Neff, former Pennsylvania state senator and Beaver County Democratic chairman, took the stand today as the first witness for the defense and denied collecting any "kickbacks" in the county division of the State Highway Department or even organizing such a scheme.

Neff replied "absolutely not!" when asked if he had ever approached any contractor leasing equipment to the highway department for a contribution based on 5 per cent of his contract.

In regard to a meeting in December 1955 when the scheme was supposedly hatched, Neff said Edward Nitsche may have been at such a meeting but", I am quite sure I wasn't there." Nitsch was also indicted but turned state's evidence.

Neff testified that he met Nitsche in the summer of 1955 and that he was a holdover from the previous administration whose capacity was limited since he was one of four construction foremen. "If such an important meeting was held, Supt. Edward Corcoran, (whom Neff sponsored) would surely have been present," Neff said.

Three others charged along with Neff are Robert Yoho, James Macry and Leon Kaleta.

Judge Morgan H. Sohn Friday afternoon dismissed two of four counts against Neff.

Judge Sohn said he felt the prosecution failed to show evidence that Neff had continued to use his influence as manager of the State Workingmen's Insurance Fund to obtain kickbacks after losing out as county chairman. Charges 3 and 4 were dismissed.

The court ruled, after extensive arguments by District Atty. Richard P. Steward and Atty. Louis Glasso, Neff's counsel, that the jury should decide whether the defendants were guilty of extortion

All 16 Aboard Killed In Aleutian Air Crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A ground party which clawed its way up an unnamed peak in the wild Aleutian Islands Friday reported that all 16 persons aboard had been killed when an airliner smashed into the mountain Thursday night.

Only the tail section of the Reeve Aleutian Airways DC4 remained intact after the four-engined craft exploded into flames on impact at the 2,000-foot level of the mountain, on Great Sitkin Island, a volcanic island 24 miles northeast of Adak.

Laos Willing To Accept UN Way In Strife

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laos is prepared to accept whatever solution is offered by the United Nations to control the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebellion, Premier Phoui Sananikone declared today.

He indicated Laos does not intend to ask for aid from the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization or other groups or countries unless there is "aggravation of the situation by Communists from outside the country."

"If the rebels are alone in their attacks, they'll last only several months," the Premier told a newspaper correspondent. "The army will destroy them easily."

But he compared the rebels to termites who sometimes do unexpected damage. He added that unless North Viet Nam "decides to cease its direct and indirect support of the rebels the situation here will remain menacing."

Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland will try a civil action Monday night in which a former East Liverpool policeman, Glenn (Curly) Montgomery, claims Chester American Legion Post 121 "obtained money by false pretenses" in that he poured $185 into the post's slot machines but got nothing back but lemons.

The post reportedly claims his losses totaled only $90. Attorneys have been retained by both sides. Montgomery now resides on Salineville R. D. 1.

Governor Confirms Start Of Lake Road In 2 Years

Present priorities for the proposed Ohio River-Lake Erie highway, linking East Liverpool and Ashtabula, were confirmed by Gov. Michael DiSalle Friday at Youngstown when he told the Kiwanis Club there the project will be started within the next two years.

The first stretch to be built will include 8.7 miles, with another 12.7 miles to be constructed within the subsequent two years, the governor said. These sections, adding up to 21.4 miles, will cost about 37 million dollars.

DiSalle said the entire road, which he termed as "highly important' because of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, will cost about 140 million dollars. The highway would be a link between the seaway and the Ohio River.

The governor also revealed plans that could cut the cost of caring for aged mental patients by more than half. He said the state would attempt to clear aged patients from mental hospitals by placing them on the aid for the aged rolls.

The average cost for caring for a senile patient in the hospitals is $1,200 to $1,500 a year while the cost to the state of putting the same patient on aid for the aged would be about $480, DiSalle estimated.

About 25 per cent of Ohio's 38,000 mental patients are aged and considered not subject to psychiatric care.

The aid for the aged program is supported equally by state and federal grants. The ceiling of $65 a month for the payments was removed this year by the Legislature, which also removed the requirement that recipients be citizens.

U.N. Fearing New Tension In Tibet Case

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —A drive for a full-scale debate on Tibet stirred concern in the United Nations today that East-West tensions will be tightened up again.

Diplomats also feared the move will dredge up the whole question of Red China's representation in the United Nations. The Assembly voted only a few days ago to shelve the Red China issue for another year.

Ireland and Malaya disclosed Friday that they plan to call for a resolution charging Red China with killing freedom in Tibet and "respect for mental human rights" for the Tibetans.

One delegate predicted that as soon as the request to put the Tibetan issue on the agenda hits the 21-nation Steering Committee, demands will arise that Red China be invited here to give her side of the case.

The United States and other Western nations presumably would oppose any move to invite Peiping as they have done when the Korean question was debated here.

The move to bring in Tibet came after an appeal for United Nations help from the Dalai Lama, self-exiled ruler of the Himalayan nation.

Opinions Vary On Teaching Phonetics

The baby who is beginning to speak may evince strong interest in sounds he hears. Before he uses the correct name for dog, cow or clock, he may call it bow-wow, moo or tick-tock. Yet he's not connecting the sounds with the printed word, but with the things he sees and hears. His learning to connect, in his mind, the sound of a word as he sees it in print and the sounds of individual letters or groups of letters in this word proves very useful for him in reading and spelling. What many reading teachers differ on his how early and how much emphasis should be placed on sounds of a word and the letters which make up this word in teaching the child to read and spell.

By Garry Meyers

FOR A number of years the emphasis on phonics, in teaching reading and spelling, has been slighter and more delayed than was the case forty or fifty years ago Most of the reading experts within the last decade have advised delay in teaching of phonics before the second or third grade. And those experts who have authored or edited series of basic readers have built these books accordingly.

A few years ago, Adolph Flesch stirred up a furor among parents and some discomfort among the reading experts, by his book "Why Johnny Can't Read," advocating that the child be taught letters and then sounds from the very beginning of his lessons in reading.

The reading experts, especially those who have good - selling sets of readers of their own, emphasizing the look - and - say method of reading, jumped hard on Flesch.

While they jumped hardest on some of his assertions which are contrary to established or easily-ascertained facts, these critics were chafing chiefly because Flesch insisted they were teaching phonics too little and too late.

ON THIS point parents and many teachers have widely agred with Dr. Flesch and it looks as if his professional critics are themselves veering fast toward phonics.

For example, Dr. Emmett Betts and Carolyn Welch, in their revised series of basic readers, "The ABC Betts Basic Readers," stress phonics in their teacher's manual, from the beginning of the first grade. I understand that a few other basic reading series, now under revision, are trying to squeeze in some phonics teaching to beginning readers.

But it's my opinion that they all still have a long way to go before phonics will have sufficient emphasis in teaching reading in the primary grades.

In the May 1959 issue of "Education" which Dr. Emmett Betts edits, he has the best positive article on phonics I have seen, "Phonics: Syllables."

My bulletins, "Helping Child at Home in Early Steps of Reading" and "Home Fun With Phonics," may be had by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

'Painting Parson' Best Thing To Happen To Church Budget

By JACK LANNAN

New England School of Theology and though trained in the Advent Christian discipline, makes no distinctions as to sect when painting churches.

GODDWINS MILLS, Maine (AP) — The "Painting Parson" and his family are among the best things that ever happened to church budgets in this New England area.

The Rev. Lloyd N. Osborne, 51-year-old pastor of the Advent Christian Congregation here, specializes in painting religious edifices—inside and out.

"I prefer to work on churches," he says, "they're nearer my profesison. I never make any service charge for equipment. It keeps the cost down and they have a hard enough time trying to get along—especially if they're anything like mine."

The country minister said he started painting about 10 years ago. It was a natural outgrowth of his building trade experience which includes carpentering and electrical wiring.

Usually, he works with a two man crew, his son, William L., 16, and daughter, Jean, 18. Sometimes a third member of the family, Deborah, 14, joins them.

Jean is a sophomore at Berkshire Christian College in Massachusetts. Her brother is a high school student. Both work on a no-holds-barred basis, climbing the long extension ladders right beside their father.

"I can pay them more than anyone else," he says," "and they're working their ways through college. They need money."

Though they specialize in churches, the parson and his family will paint just about anything. They do two churches a summer, usually, and did the same before they came here from Newbury, Vt.

Osborne, who hails from Wareham, Mass., is a graduate of the

Opinions Vary On Teaching Phonetics

The baby who is beginning to speak may evince strong interest in sounds he hears. Before he uses the correct name for dog, cow or clock, he may call it bow-wow, moo or tick-tock. Yet he's not connecting the sounds with the printed word, but with the things he sees and hears. His learning to connect, in his mind, the sound of a word as he sees it in print and the sounds of individual letters or groups of letters in this word proves very useful for him in reading and spelling. What many reading teachers differ on his how early and how much emphasis should be placed on sounds of a word and the letters which make up this word in teaching the child to read and spell.

FOR A number of years the emphasis on phonics, in teaching reading and spelling, has been slighter and more delayed than was the case forty or fifty years ago Most of the reading experts within the last decade have advised delay in teaching of phonics before the second or third grade. And those experts who have authored or edited series of basic readers have built these books accordingly.

A few years ago, Adolph Flesch stirred up a furor among parents and some discomfort among the reading experts, by his book "Why Johnny Can't Read," advocating that the child be taught letters and then sounds from the very beginning of his lessons in reading.

The reading experts, especially those who have good - selling sets of readers of their own, emphasizing the look - and - say method of reading, jumped hard on Flesch.

While they jumped hardest on some of his assertions which are contrary to established or easily-ascertained facts, these critics were chafing chiefly because Flesch insisted they were teaching phonics too little and too late.

ON THIS point parents and many teachers have widely agred with Dr. Flesch and it looks as if his professional critics are themselves veering fast toward phonics.

For example, Dr. Emmett Betts and Carolyn Welch, in their revised series of basic readers, "The ABC Betts Basic Readers," stress phonics in their teacher's manual, from the beginning of the first grade. I understand that a few other basic reading series, now under revision, are trying to squeeze in some phonics teaching to beginning readers.

But it's my opinion that they all still have a long way to go before phonics will have sufficient emphasis in teaching reading in the primary grades.

In the May 1959 issue of "Education" which Dr. Emmett Betts edits, he has the best positive article on phonics I have seen, "Phonics: Syllables."

My bulletins, "Helping Child at Home in Early Steps of Reading" and "Home Fun With Phonics," may be had by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

'Painting Parson' Best Thing To Happen To Church Budget

By JACK LANNAN

GODDWINS MILLS, Maine (AP) — The "Painting Parson" and his family are among the best things that ever happened to church budgets in this New England area.

The Rev. Lloyd N. Osborne, 51-year-old pastor of the Advent Christian Congregation here, specializes in painting religious edifices—inside and out.

"I prefer to work on churches," he says, "they're nearer my professon. I never make any service charge for equipment. It keeps the cost down and they have a hard enough time trying to get along—especially if they're anything like mine."

The country minister said he started painting about 10 years ago. It was a natural outgrowth of his building trade experience which includes carpentering and electrical wiring.

Usually, he works with a two man crew, his son, William L., 16, and daughter, Jean, 18. Sometimes a third member of the family, Deborah, 14, joins them.

Jean is a sophomore at Berkshire Christian College in Massachusetts. Her brother is a high school student. Both work on a no-holds-barred basis, climbing the long extension ladders right beside their father.

"I can pay them more than anyone else," he says," "and they're working their ways through college. They need money."

Though they specialize in churches, the parson and his family will paint just about anything. They do two churches a summer, usually, and did the same before they came here from Newbury, Vt.

Osborne, who hails from Wareham, Mass., is a graduate of the New England School of Theology and though trained in the Advent Christian discipline, makes no distinctions as to sect when painting churches.

Notice Required For Inspections

LISBON — Dr. C. S. Palmer, county health commissioner, said today at least 72 hours notice will be required for inspection of plumbing and septic tank installations and requests should be made direct to the health department office.

"The number of permits issued by the department is considerably greater than last year and consequently the inspection load is much heavier. As it was necessary, for financial reasons, to dispense with the services of one plumbing inspector, this left but one man to cover the entire county.

"In order to keep up with this heavy inspection load, it is neccessay for the inspector to reduce his traveling time by working the county in areas. This is to request everyone's co-operation by giving the department at least 72 hours notice whenever possible when requesting inspections. We hope the department soon will be able to increase its staff and that this inconvenience will be only temporary.

"Make all inspection requests direct to the Health Department so that this office can make assignments. The department cannot be responsible for complying with requests made other than through the office. Permits must be on file before inspections can be made," he said.

Rolling For Air Force

Crucible Will Experiment In Spaceship Sheet Metal

American spaceships may someday be clad with a superior metal fabricated through the research of the Crucible Steel Co. at its Midland Works and Pittsburgh plant.

The Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton said the Aeronautical Systems Center has awarded a contract to Crucible to develop a process for rolling columbium alloy sheet.

Crucible, under a contract with the Manufacturing Methods Division of the systems center, will endeavor to develop a process for manufacture of columbium alloy sheets 36-x-96-inches with uniform properties in a flat condition.

One of the refractory metals group, columbium melts at the high temperature of 4475 degrees Fahrenheit, and promises the lightest structures of an engineering metal at the incandescent jet and missile temperatures that will be encountered in future Air Force engines, airframes and missiles.

"Our company, the pioneer in developing the first specialty metal for aircraft—titanium—is pleased once again to have the opportunity to contribute to our national defense," said Joel Hunter, Crucible president.

Specific objectives of this program are to provide processing techniques and sequences leading to production of defect-free, high-formability, alloy columbium flat-rolled sheets with a high tensile strength.

Basically, the columbium sheet program will resemble that of the present beryllium program funded by Manufacturing Methods Division. It is also similar to the titanium sheet rolling Program just completed by Crucible.

The program will be developed in five phases, beginning with sheets 24-x-24, then 36-x-36 before the final production of the 36-x-96-inch sheets.

The program is expected to take about two years before final results are determined.

Talks

one of these bitterly disputed issues, ranging from Berlin to Laos, was ruled out in the course of the brief two-man summit conference. But both men are looking for some new approach to further East-West negotiations.

But the American and Soviet leaders were reported near accord on measures for greater U.S.-Soviet cooperation in several fields of peaceful enterprise, including atomic energy for power production.

Such accords, if actually worked out in the mountain hideaway, could prove to be the first steps toward truce in the cold war. Yet American officials, deeply suspicious of Khrushchev's true aims, refrained from any optimistic forecasts.

The conference began Friday night after Eisenhower and Khrushchev flew to the Catoctin Mountain camp by helicopter from the White house, 65 miles away. Their first talk lasted about three hours.

From this they turned today to debate of the Berlin crisis, disarmament, Laos, and the threat of U.S. bases near the Soviet Union versus the threat of forward Soviet forces in eastern Europe.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who debated with Khrushchev in Moscow during the summer, was summoned by Eisenhower to join today's discussions.

Chairman John A. McCone of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was expected to take part. He and his Soviet opposite number, V. A. Emelyanov, have already laid the groundwork for an Eisenhower - Khrushchev agreement on an exchange of information about development of atomic power plants—a potential new venture in Soviet-American cooperation. Visits of scientists working on the peaceful uses of atomic energy may also be arranged.

Much spadework is also reported on expanding exchanges of visits between the United States and the Soviet Union by experts in education, industry and medicine.

If Eisenhower and Khrushchev can make any headway at all in their discussions of the critical Berlin dispute, the Camp David meeting may also produce a recommendation to Britain and France that a new meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers on Berlin should be called in the next few months.

The tumult and shouting of Khrushchev's American tour was temporarily suspended about 6 o'clock Friday night when the Soviet Premier stepped across the threshold of Aspen Lodge and into the quiet of its oak paneled living room.

He will reappear on the public stage Sunday afternoon, following conclusion of the Camp David talks. He is scheduled to hold an hour-long Washington news conference and make a subsequent hour-long television speech prior to his departure for Moscow Sunday night.

But Khrushchev the traveling quip-maker got in a few last licks before Khrushchev the diplomat took over at Camp David.

As Eisenhower and he stood at the lodge door posing for photographs, Eisenhower said of the busy, crowding photographers: "I'm glad they don't shoot."

"It's lucky," Khrushchev rejoined with a chuckle, "that Mr. Garst is not here. If he were he would try to organize this his own way."

The reference was to Roswell Garst, the farmer who was Khrushchev's host near Coon Rapids, Iowa, three days ago. The crush of newsmen on the farm was so great that Garst at one time fought a running battle with kicks and corn stocks against onrushing photographers.

"Everything seems to be quiet along this front," said Eisenhower with a grin.

Said Khrushchev: "All the soldiers are peacefully inclined."

As the two exchanged these pleasantries, Marine guards stood on each side of them. Scores of others in fatigue uniforms, wearing campaign hats and sidearms were deployed about the wooded camp and posted at short intervals inside its high steel mesh fence.

Newsmen and photographers, admitted briefly to record the arrival of the two men and their aides and advisers, were tightly confined to a small area in front of Aspen Lodge. The quiet and order were in marked contrast to the hectic scenes which erupted along Khrushchev's swing around the country.

Khrushchev, Eisenhower, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter were quartered in Aspen Lodge where last March Eisenhower conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Others in the party, including Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, were assigned quarters in cabins nearby.

Word of the proceedings at the camp was brought to reporters in Gettysburg, 25 miles away, by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, and Assistant Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding.

Best Wishes Voiced By Pravda For Mr. K

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda today voiced its best wishes for Premier Nikita Khrushchev in his Camp David talks with President Eisenhower and exclaimed in a six-column headline, "Let's outlaw cold war everywhere and forever."

Rockefeller Causes Fresh Speculation

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller arrived in this politically strategic state today for a whirlwind visit that touched off fresh speculation he would run for the Republican nomination for president.

There was widespread belief he was here to sound out opinion on his chances next March in the New Hampshire presidential primary, which will be the first in the nation next year.

If he entered, he would clash with Vice President Richard Nixon, now the leading contender for the party nomination to succeed President Eisenhower.

Rockefeller has laughed off suggestions his trip was political. He has insisted he planned it only to visit with his Dartmouth College classmates and watch a football game here.

But his schedule also included:

1. A news conference at a Concord hotel across the street from newly opened headquarters of a "Draft Rockefeller for President" movement.

2. A meeting with New Hampshire Gov. Wesley Powell, regarded as a Nixon supporter.

3. A dinner meeting with 40 prominent residents of New Hampshire who launched the draft-Rockefeller movement and want him to enter the state's primary.

Pastor Installed For 2 Churches

The Rev. James A. McCollam was installed as minister of the Salineville United Presbyterian Church and the Grant's Hill church Friday night at the Salineville church, with Dr. Alexander K. Davison, pastor of the First U. P. Church here, in charge.

Other ministers participating in the service included the Rev. Ernest E. Bacon of the Oak Ridge U. P. Church, the Rev. Joseph Varner Jr. of the Highlandtown Bethel church, the Rev. Richard Beidler of the Yellow Creek Church and the Rev. Emanuel Emaneul of the Second Presbyterian here.

The Rev. Philip H. Fletcher of the Wellsville First church gave the sermon.

The Presbytery opened the meeting in the basement of the church and theb proceeded to the sanctuary for the ceremony.

Joint Drive Suggested

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio Democrats are inviting Ohio Republicans to team up for a joint fund-raising campaign. Joe Waterman, chairman of the 1959 state "Dollars for Democrats," drive, extended the invitation to Republicans Friday, explaining that a joint drive, stressing "support the party of your choice," would help both. Last year the Republican party refused a similar gesture.

Notice Required For Inspections

LISBON — Dr. C. S. Palmer, county health commissioner, said today at least 72 hours notice will be required for inspection of plumbing and septic tank installations and requests should be made direct to the health department office.

"The number of permits issued by the department is considerably greater than last year and consequently the inspection load is much heavier. As it was necessary, for financial reasons, to dispense with the services of one plumbing inspector, this left but one man to cover the entire county.

"In order to keep up with this heavy inspection load, it is neccessay for the inspector to reduce his traveling time by working the county in areas. This is to request everyone's co-operation by giving the department at least 72 hours notice whenever possible when requesting inspections. We hope the department soon will be able to increase its staff and that this inconvenience will be only temporary.

"Make all inspection requests direct to the Health Department so that this office can make assignments. The department cannot be responsible for complying with requests made other than through the office. Permits must be on file before inspections can be made," he said.

Rolling For Air Force

Crucible Will Experiment In Spaceship Sheet Metal

American spaceships may someday be clad with a superior metal fabricated through the research of the Crucible Steel Co. at its Midland Works and Pittsburgh plant.

The Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton said the Aeronautical Systems Center has awarded a contract to Crucible to develop a process for rolling columbium alloy sheet.

Crucible, under a contract with the Manufacturing Methods Division of the systems center, will endeavor to develop a process for manufacture of columbium alloy sheets 36-x-96-inches with uniform properties in a flat condition.

One of the refractory metals group, columbium melts at the high temperature of 4475 degrees Fahrenheit, and promises the lightest structures of an engineering metal at the incandescent jet and missile temperatures that will be encountered in future Air Force engines, airframes and missiles.

"Our company, the pioneer in developing the first specialty metal for aircraft—titanium—is pleased once again to have the opportunity to contribute to our national defense," said Joel Hunter, Crucible president.

Specific objectives of this program are to provide processing techniques and sequences leading to production of defect-free, high-formability, alloy columbium flat-rolled sheets with a high tensile strength.

Basically, the columbium sheet program will resemble that of the present beryllium program funded by Manufacturing Methods Division. It is also similar to the titanium sheet rolling Program just completed by Crucible.

The program will be developed in five phases, beginning with sheets 24-x-24, then 36-x-36 before the final production of the 36-x-96-inch sheets.

The program is expected to take about two years before final results are determined.

one of these bitterly disputed issues, ranging from Berlin to Laos, was ruled out in the course of the brief two-man summit conference. But both men are looking for some new approach to further East-West negotiations.

But the American and Soviet leaders were reported near accord on measures for greater U.S.-Soviet cooperation in several fields of peaceful enterprise, including atomic energy for power production.

Such accords, if actually worked out in the mountain hideaway, could prove to be the first steps toward truce in the cold war. Yet American officials, deeply suspicious of Khrushchev's true aims, refrained from any optimistic forecasts.

The conference began Friday night after Eisenhower and Khrushchev flew to the Catoctin Mountain camp by helicopter from the White house, 65 miles away. Their first talk lasted about three hours.

From this they turned today to debate of the Berlin crisis, disarmament, Laos, and the threat of U.S. bases near the Soviet Union versus the threat of forward Soviet forces in eastern Europe.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who debated with Khrushchev in Moscow during the summer, was summoned by Eisenhower to join today's discussions.

Chairman John A. McCone of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was expected to take part. He and his Soviet opposite number, V. A. Emelyanov, have already laid the groundwork for an Eisenhower - Khrushchev agreement on an exchange of information about development of atomic power plants—a potential new venture in Soviet-American cooperation. Visits of scientists working on the peaceful uses of atomic energy may also be arranged.

Much spadework is also reported on expanding exchanges of visits between the United States and the Soviet Union by experts in education, industry and medicine.

If Eisenhower and Khrushchev can make any headway at all in their discussions of the critical Berlin dispute, the Camp David meeting may also produce a recommendation to Britain and France that a new meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers on Berlin should be called in the next few months.

The tumult and shouting of Khrushchev's American tour was temporarily suspended about 6 o'clock Friday night when the Soviet Premier stepped across the threshold of Aspen Lodge and into the quiet of its oak paneled living room.

He will reappear on the public stage Sunday afternoon, following conclusion of the Camp David talks. He is scheduled to hold an hour-long Washington news conference and make a subsequent hour-long television speech prior to his departure for Moscow Sunday night.

But Khrushchev the traveling quip-maker got in a few last licks before Khrushchev the diplomat took over at Camp David.

As Eisenhower and he stood at the lodge door posing for photographs, Eisenhower said of the busy, crowding photographers: "I'm glad they don't shoot."

"It's lucky," Khrushchev rejoined with a chuckle, "that Mr. Garst is not here. If he were he would try to organize this his own way."

The reference was to Roswell Garst, the farmer who was Khrushchev's host near Coon Rapids, Iowa, three days ago. The crush of newsmen on the farm was so great that Garst at one time fought a running battle with kicks and corn stocks against onrushing photographers.

"Everything seems to be quiet along this front," said Eisenhower with a grin.

Said Khrushchev: "All the soldiers are peacefully inclined."

As the two exchanged these pleasantries, Marine guards stood on each side of them. Scores of others in fatigue uniforms, wearing campaign hats and sidearms were deployed about the wooded camp and posted at short intervals inside its high steel mesh fence.

Newsmen and photographers, admitted briefly to record the arrival of the two men and their aides and advisers, were tightly confined to a small area in front of Aspen Lodge. The quiet and order were in marked contrast to the hectic scenes which erupted along Khrushchev's swing around the country.

Khrushchev, Eisenhower, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter were quartered in Aspen Lodge where last March Eisenhower conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Others in the party, including Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, were assigned quarters in cabins nearby.

Word of the proceedings at the camp was brought to reporters in Gettysburg, 25 miles away, by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, and Assistant Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding.

Rockefeller Causes Fresh Speculation

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller arrived in this politically strategic state today for a whirlwind visit that touched off fresh speculation he would run for the Republican nomination for president.

There was widespread belief he was here to sound out opinion on his chances next March in the New Hampshire presidential primary, which will be the first in the nation next year.

If he entered, he would clash with Vice President Richard Nixon, now the leading contender for the party nomination to succeed President Eisenhower.

Rockefeller has laughed off suggestions his trip was political. He has insisted he planned it only to visit with his Dartmouth College classmates and watch a football game here.

But his schedule also included:

1. A news conference at a Concord hotel across the street from newly opened headquarters of a "Draft Rockefeller for President" movement.

2. A meeting with New Hampshire Gov. Wesley Powell, regarded as a Nixon supporter.

3. A dinner meeting with 40 prominent residents of New Hampshire who launched the draft-Rockefeller movement and want him to enter the state's primary.

Pastor Installed For 2 Churches

The Rev. James A. McCollam was installed as minister of the Salineville United Presbyterian Church and the Grant's Hill church Friday night at the Salineville church, with Dr. Alexander K. Davison, pastor of the First U. P. Church here, in charge.

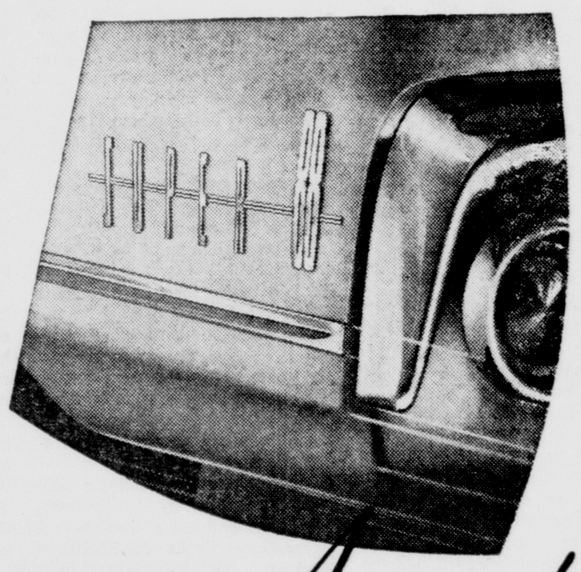

The charge to the minister was given by the Rev. John Taylor of the Old Third church in Steubenville and the charge to the congregation by the Rev. George Jenkins of Carrollton, general presbyter of the Steubenville Presbytery.

Other ministers participating in the service included the Rev. Ernest E. Bacon of the Oak Ridge U. P. Church, the Rev. Joseph Varner Jr. of the Highlandtown Bethel church, the Rev. Richard Beidler of the Yellow Creek Church and the Rev. Emanuel Emaneul of the Second Presbyterian here.

The Rev. Philip H. Fletcher of the Wellsville First church gave the sermon.

The Presbytery opened the meeting in the basement of the church and theb proceeded to the sanctuary for the ceremony.

Refreshments were served by women of the church.

Thirty-three colleges benefit from the fund. This year, Peters said, they are depending upon it to raise $2,250,000.

All but one of the colleges is located in the South, Peters said, pointing out that some 70 per cent of America's 17 million Negroes live in that section of the U.S.

Members of the local committee are:

Mayor Fred Lawrence, Safety-Service Director Joseph Ross, Harry Densmore, Mrs. Mary J. Frontone, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Chandler, the Rev. W. L. Hafley, the Rev. C. W. Goss, the Rev. R. L. Lattimore, James Reaney, Leo Lawrence, Mrs. Ira Brown, Mrs. Joseph Porter, Ralph Betts, Clyde Christian, Homer Williams, Mrs. Amelia G. Adams, Francis Lang, Mrs. Catherine Williams, Mrs. Wilanna Smith, William Southall, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carter, Orin Smith Jr. and John Chavis.

School Projects Discussed At Yellow Creek PTA Session

Improvements made at the school during the summer were discussed at a meeting of the No. 16 Parent-Teacher Association Friday night at the Yellow Creek Township School.

The PTA donated $200 which was used for playground equipment, various types of balls and a telephone extension.

It was announced a shuffle board and hi-fi set also have been ordered. In co-operation with Southern Local Board of Education, the PTA plans to purchase a merry-go-around for the playlot.

This was the initial meeting of the new term. Parents and teachers were introduced. Mrs. Fred Schubert, principal, gave the welcome. Mrs. Rhelda Rockhold, president, introduced officers and members of the executive committee.

A $10 donation was made to the Child Counseling Center of East Liverpool and the PTA voted to join the Columbiana County PTA Council.

The attendance award was won by the seventh and eight grades taught by Jerry Russell.

A musical program was presented. Solos were sung by Russell Howell and Lola Cramer. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kelly sang a duet. The Mothers Quarter, Mrs. Lois Kelly, Mrs. Vivian Taggart, Mrs. Martha Reight and Mrs. Beth Clutter, also sang.

Mrs. Schubert announced a clinic will be held at the school Oct. 6. The students will be given any immunization shots they do not have, including any of the three required polio shots. The parents will be charged $1 for each shot. Dr. C. S. Palmer, Columbiana County health commissioner, will be in charge.

Lunch was served by the social committee, headed by Mrs. Dorothy Way, chairman. The next meeting will be Oct. 23.

Some Areas Quit DST But Crazy, Man, Crazy

NEW YORK — Daylight Saving Time will end Sunday in a crazy-quilt pattern of communities across the nation.

But in New York, New England and throughout most of the Middle Atlantic states it will continue until Oct. 25.

At 2 a. m. tomorrow local time clocks will be moved back an hour in California, Nevada, Wisconsin, in parts of Indiana, Pennsylvania and Northeastern Ohio, and the eastern part of West Virginia.

In addition to the Eastern Seaboard states, those that have extended daylight time include Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky.

Scattered communities in Indiana and Nebraska have adopted daylight time the year around.

Mercury May Hit 88 And This Is Autumn?

This is supposed to be autumn but the Ohio Weatherman said temperatures may range as high as 88 degrees today with an increase in humidity.

And tonight's low will be an unseasonable 64 to 69.

With the countryside turning brown from the prolonged dry spell, there was no hope for a drenching rain to lay the forest fire danger but at least scattered showers or thundershowers are forecast for tonight and Sunday.

3 Den Mothers Named For Pack

Three new den mothers were announced when Cub Scout Pack 36 of Calcutta met Friday night in the Longs Run Presbyterian Church. Don Lyle is cubmaster.

Mrs. Ruth Green, Mrs. Jackie Gray and Mrs. Jerry Shepherd were named.

Cubs displayed various hobbies in keeping with the theme for September.

Recipients of awards included Thomas Gooding, Lew Brown and Richrad Sachs, wolf badges; Robert Copestick and Brown, gold and silver wolf arrows; Paul Brown, silver arrow under wolf; James Gooding, silver arrow under bear, and Robert Rohr, one-year service pin. Allen Copestick was presented with a den chief shoulder tab and cord.

Plans were discussed for a Halloween party Oct. 30. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Evelyn Copestick of Den 3 and Mrs. Frances Goodman of Den 4. The next meeting will be the party in the Calcutta fire station.

Joint Drive Suggested

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio Democrats are inviting Ohio Republicans to team up for a joint fund-raising campaign. Joe Waterman, chairman of the 1959 state "Dollars for Democrats," drive, extended the invitation to Republicans Friday, explaining that a joint drive, stressing "support the party of your choice," would help both. Last year the Republican party refused a similar gesture.

Agricultural Merry-Go-Round

While Nikita Khrushchev was inspecting U.S. farm methods in Iowa last week, Secretary of Agriculture Benson was taking off on an overseas tour that includes several Iron Curtain countries and no less than 11 congressional committees were planning or embarking on junkets abroad.

Astonishing as it may seem, all the travel activity was related in one of those oddball situations that characterize modern world conditions.

Mr. Khrushchev represents a bloc of nations chronically plagued with inadequate farm production. He is interested in making good on his oft-repeated pledge to overtake the U.S. in that field in the not-too-distant future.

Mr. Benson represents a nation chronically plagued with too much farm production. He is interested in getting rid of some of its overflowing surpluses.

His trip is aimed at expanding the use of the 1954 law which permits the sale of surpluses to other countries. Some of these fall within the domain of Mr. Khrushchev.

One of the problems of this program, however, is that the purchasing nations frequently are so short of dollars that they pay for the foodstuffs with credits to be spent within their own borders.

To keep these foreign credits from becoming as much of an economic headache as the surpluses at home, the U.S. spends them for such things as foreign technical books and papers, exchange visits, buildings for U.S. use and for junketing congressmen.

So, while some of the legislators will be paying their expenses out of the record travel appropriations passed by the recent session of Congress, many will be putting the tab on the overseas farm surplus credits.

Putting it all together, it takes on the earmarks of a crazy game of tag. While Mr. Khrushchev is trying to figure out what U.S. methods will help him boost Communist farm output, Mr. Benson is trying to sell Communist nations more U.S. agriculture surpluses, which will increase the stockpile of foreign credits.

And while Mr. Benson is engaged in that pursuit, congressmen are trying to use up more of the fat cash reserves accumulated from surplus sales already made.

Meanwhile, the congressmen have left behind them — untouched on their desks on Capitol Hill — Mr. Benson's proposals for reducing the farm surpluses.

Such are the peculiarities of modern civilization.

Secrets Of A Red Reviewing Stand

Who, besides Nikita Khrushchev, will be standing next to Mao Tse-tung Thursday when Communist China's officialdom gathers to watch the big Peiping parade celebrating the 10th anniversary of the Red regime?

That is typical of the questions passing between old China hands as indications of a new purge revive the interesting—and sometimes grim—Western game of trying to figure out what really is going on behind the Bamboo Curtain.

The purge began to be suspected when dispatches reported some new shuffling among the Chinese hierarchy in the wake of admissions that previous production reports had been wildly exaggerated.

The most thought-provoking change was the replacement of Marshal Peng Teh-huai as defense minister. He was a principal speaker at last year's October 1 observance. He said:

"There is every reason to believe that within about three years the people of our country will be able to enjoy a happy life of abundance, and the backwardness and poverty brought about by thousands of years of reactionary rule will exist only in memory."

Less than a year later, his words were shown by his own colleagues to be mere propaganda. They reported, after a secret conference in August, that the output of usable steel, backbone of the new "progress plan," had fallen more than three million tons short of claims in 1958. As a result, the 1959 goal was trimmed by six million tons.

Coupled with the obvious slowdown in the communes program, the production report stuck pins in the balloon of Mao's boasts that Red China had found the magic antidote for economic immaturity.

So the experts will be watching for clues at Thursday's fete to whether Peng is getting the full-blown oblivion treatment or merely being down-graded from an exalted post.

But whoever happens to be present, it would be equally interesting to know what Nikita Khrushchev will be telling production-worried Mao about what he saw in America.

The Unsung Birthday

With the world's No. 1 Communist holding the spotlight on his visit to America, it is not surprising that the birthday of one of his most frustrated subsidiaries passed virtually unnoticed.

It is doubtful that even the hard-core members of the Communist Part of the United States felt there was cause for celebration on the 40th anniversary of its founding.

Parties have come and gone in this land of liberty, but it would be hard to find one that ever put in four rockier decades than the U.S. Reds. And the reason is that neither its motives nor its methods were based on liberty.

Almost before it had drawn its first squalling breath, it was driven underground by the zealous attacks of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer. After the furor died down, the party did gain a limited measure of respectability during the Roaring '20s, which was enhanced by the demoralizing depression of the '30s.

But the servile switch in party line that followed the Stalin-Hitler pact of 1939 brought the Reds' tenuous ascendancy to an end. A comeback attempt sparked by the World War II alliance with the West was shortly extinguished by the takeover in Czechoslovakia, the Berlin blockade and other Stalinist extensions of the Iron Curtain.

More recently, the Hungarian blood-letting turned the stomachs of some who had endured all else, leaving only a vestige of the most fanatical Marxists. And some of those, trained in the Stalin tradition, hold little truck with Khrushchev and his crew.

So it is doubtful that what is left of the Communist Party of the U.S. has much faith in the old saw that life begins at 40.

The Power Of Faith

By Howard Brodie

We often think of artists as being moody, egotistical, head-strong geniuses too wrapped up in themselves to ever think of anyone or anything but their work.

But Fra Angelico, the great Renaissance master, was an artist of such consummate humility that he knelt while painting his "Madonna" and wept while he worked on his "Crucifixion."

This simple man of God, who gave up a promising career as a painter of miniatures to enter a Dominican monastery, never lifted his brush without praying for inspiration. The scenes of the life of Christ he painted on the walls of the Monastery of San Marco in Florence are responsible for that building today being regarded as one of the great art treasures of the world.

Said art critic John Ruskin of this good monk's life work: "He bequeathed to the world the most radiant consummation of the pure ideal of Christianity."

AFL-CIO Avoids Teamster Fight

By Victor Riesel

SAN FRANCISCO — Terror rides the highway. It rides every day right up front with at least 2,000 truck drivers who hate Jimmy Hoffa's guts. Those are 2,000 Teamsters about whom we now know. There are probably tens of thousands more. But those 2,000 men, whose strong hands guide mammoth vans "across-the-road," are members of one big local which heaved out Hoffa's men in recent elections. They want to get out of the Teamster's musclehood.

Victor Riesel

But if they took their American civil rights seriously and refused to stay in Hoffa's empire and refused to pay him dues, they would be wiped out of their jobs.

Jimmy Hoffa's men would close off American cities to them. They would not be permitted to unload and deliver. So they are prisoners —reform law or no reform law.

These Teamsters are from Cincinnati. The shame of the cities of America was whipped out into the open on the floor of the AFL-CIO convention when its leader, George Meany, was acidly explaining to critical former CIO officials why the powerful 13-million member federation had not launched a rival teamster union and openly declared civil war against Hoffa right across the land.

MEANY, with his hatred for Hoffa dripping over the microphone disclosed that he had talked with anti-Hoffa forces about a counter-offensive. He said:

"In one large city in this country there has been a fight on for the last year and a half between the officers at the head of the Teamsters in that city and the forces of Hoffa with all his goons and with every possible dollar he could throw in there.

"These thousands of members, 10,000 roughly, in three or four local unions, have gone through elections and they have beaten Hoffa every step of the way.

"You say, well, its very simple —Why don't you start there? Why don't you charter that group; I will tell you why we don't charter them and why they haven't applied for a charter.

"Two thousand make their living (driving) over-the-road, they leave that particular city and go 50 or 100 miles away every day of their working lives. And those 2,000, according to what the Teamsters representatives in that city tell us, these 2,000 would be sacrificed. It would not be possible for them to go to another city in complete control of the Hoffa forces and deliver their goods. So they would have to sacrificed."

MEANY DISCLOSED that he had been talking to rebel Teamsters. Always he asks them, "Can you live if you get out of the Teamsters?" Always they say "No."

Hoffa and his graying eminence, Harold Gibbons, have warned that any local bolting the empire would be destroyed within 24 hours.

"So the AFL-CIO executive council has talked about this matter and they have felt that it is the better part of wisdom not to attempt to charter a new teamsters union," Meany said grimly. "Maybe this situation will change and maybe it will not.

"However, until it changes to the point where we have some assurance that these people can live, that they can form a new union away from these people (Hoffa), we have got to mark time."

But the militants of the old CIO don't want to mark time. They want to hurtle their way into the Teamsters Union.

They want to work undercover against Hoffa. They want money and manpower given to the anti-Hoffa underground opposition before the word underground takes on a literal as well as a figurative meaning.

The lead against Meany's policies was taken by Al Hartnett, second-in-command of Jim Carey's International Union of Electrical Workers.

He was a slim young gladiator among hundreds of harden labor leaders.

He shouted, "Not one single effort has been made to bring" the honest Teamster rank-and-file into the AFL-CIO. He hammered away on the theme that AFL-CIO has a duty to go out and campaign against the Teamsters.

HARTNETT got no place. There was little sympathy among the 1,000 powerful labor chiefs, who were delegstes to the convention, for a battle against the men atop the Teamsters empire.

There was no applause for the only outcry of the convention against the iron rule of James Hoffa. Hartnett's reward for righteous anger was criticism, mockery and silence.

It was then that Jim Carey, showing just briefly in public the angry disdain he has for many of the old liners, called for an open raid on Hoffa's regime.

Carey, as methodically cold and hard hitting as Meany, said that expulsion was not enough. "We have to do something for those rank-and-file Teamsters who want no part of Hoffa."

Carey did not want to launch a rival teamsters brotherhood. Instead, he wanted the labor movement to stop talking and go in and help clean corruption out of the Hoffa domain. And Hoffa along with it.

There was silence when he finished. Perhaps terror on the highways impressed the delegates. Or perhaps they just didn't take it as a personal insult.

Letter To The Editor

To understand Khrushchev's visit to this country is hard indeed. But to be civil and courteous hurts no one.

It is well to let the little man blow off steam. Let him play his one-man band of insults and boasts.

We do not master a thing by sneering or running away. A tiger is not captured by the fleeing hunter. Let us listen to this little man and be silent. His claims, if we are true Americans, will not alter our American way of life.

Let us be big where he is small! Quiet while he shouts!

For a man who professes to be an atheist, he mentions and refers to God quite often. Down under the surface Khrushchev apparently has a God to whom he, too, must account on the Judgment Day.

The invitation was granted to him from this country to see how we live. Instead, he has put the country in reverse and is determined that we will see only his type of civilization.

The premier is badly mixed up—a ripe, rich fruit of Communism, a type of government of which we wish no part.

His visit to this country is good—despite the agitation it may cause —because it shows us what a wonderful way of life and liberty we possess. Thanks, Khrushchev, for reopening our eyes! Let us not start wars by ending the "cold war".

Congress Boosted, Did Not Trim Budget

What's more important today to 170 million Americans than the purchasing power of the dollar which has already declined 38 cents since the war ended in 1945?

What's more important to the American people than the terrible effects than can ensue if inflation is continued?

David Lawrence

The most important news that concerns the American pocketbook of today and tomorrow is what happened in the last session of Congress to promote or retard extravagant spending by the federal government.

The politicians, including the Democratic leaders in control of Congress, have boasted in the last two weeks that they cut the President's budget—that during the last session they were, indeed, better economizers than he was.

But the people have a "right to know" the facts, and it is unfortunate that, just because the director of the budget issues a mass of figures which look overwhelmingly complex, his formal statement released through the White House last Wednesday was not widely printed.

MAURICE H. STANS, who, as director of the budget, is charged by law with keeping the government's books on receipts and expenses, writes:

"Contradictory statements concerning the effect of congressional action on the President's budget occur many times because such analyses are not developed on bases which are truly comparable.

"The budget recommended by the President for the fiscal year 1960 indicated receipts from present and requested taxes of 77.1 billion dollars and expenditures of approminately 77 billion.

"These figures determine the extent by which the budget is balanced when submitted.

"A second set of figures in the President's budget document consists of his requests for appropriations or other authority to spend for both the coming year and future years as well.

"It is inaccurate to assume that actions on appropriation bills necessarily have an equivalent effect on expenditures for the budget year.

"Thus, any implication that congressional reductions in the President's appropriation requests necessarily affects in direct proportion the balanced budget for 1960 is misleading. Because the congressional reductions of appropriations for 1960 were mainly in long lead-time items, the effect on 1960 expenditures is small."

THEN WHAT DID Congress really do to the nation's finances for the fiscal year 1960 and the years ahead?

Mr. Stans refers pointedly to the statements, issued by the Democratic leaders in Congress. He says:

"Tables inserted in the "Congressional Record" assert that the Congress reduced the President's appropriation requests by 1,881 million dollars and reduced his requests for new spending authority outside the appropriation process—so-called "backdoor" financing—by nearly 700 million, for a total reduction of 2½ billion. These tables do not recognize the following modifying factors:

"1. Figures indicating appropriation reductions including 848 million which are actually postponements to another year or reductons which will have to be restored on uncontrollable items.

"2. On a comparable basis congressional action on new obligational authority outside the appropriation process actually added 231 million beyond the President's request—so-called "backdoor" financing—and other legislation authorizes or commits the federal government to expenditures of 12,358 million, not including the food stamp program which was authorized on a non-mandatory basis for a two-year period at an estimated cost of 220 million.

"3. These tables do not list certain revenue proposals recommended in the President's budget but not enacted by the Congress, which would have reduced net expenditures over a full year by a total of 540 million."

SO WHAT DOES it all add up to? The director of the budget tells the American people the sad facts —namely, that congressional action not only increased net expenditures in 1960 by 597 million over the budget but added 11½ billion more in spending for the years after fiscal 1960.

There were, to be sure, appropriation items amounting to about 1.9 billion which were cut by Congress out of the 1960 budget asked for by the President but nearly half of this amount—848 million—was merely postponed and will require "later restoration," as Mr. Stans describes it.

Congress, on the other hand, passed its own "pork barrel" legislation adding 751 million of fuworks"—enacting it over the President's veto.

There were some proposals by the President for spending in future years which were reduced by about one billion but, all in all, Congress saddled the country with a bill of 11½ billion for future spending which the President didn't recommend.

It is this kind of reckless use of the appropriation process that threatens the stability of the American dollar in future years.

How many people, outside financial circles, will get the point? They'll get it in later years perhaps when the dollar declines still further. The saboteurs of 1959, however, will by that time have been forgotten.

Getting Public Attention

By Raymond Moley

I am not a sports writer and no expert in that field. I have always believed that the good sports writers stand with the foremost in fine writing.

While this piece deals with sporting news, it concerns a much broader aspect of the high art of managing public opinion by getting attention.

That is, of course, the vital element in political life, in which I do have some special knowledge.

The events come close to me because I have from the age of 10, followed the fortunes of the Cleveland Baseball Club with all the emotional stresses and strains of youth.

PERHAPS I should draw no conclusions about General Manager Frank Lane's amazing switch from literally driving Manager Joe Gordon from his job and then in a bewildering shift rehiring him at an increase in tenure and pay.

I have been far from the scene, and when this is printed I shall be on a ship bound for the British election campaign but I suggest to all who have to do with the task of snaring public attention in any field that they note a course followed by Frank Lane which succeeded in crowding into top headlines.

This came in the face of a faltering finish by his club, with eyes turned from the poor Indians to the White Sox, Dogers, Giants, and Braves.

In Wednesday's afternoon papers in New York, Mr. K ran a poor second to Lane and Gordon. I would not, however, commend the course to beginners in politics and business.

Nor do I ascribe motives to Lane. But if his motive was to get 54,000 people into his ball park while the poor Yankees were drawing a miserable handful in Washington, his course of action accomplished just that. And with his happy ending, undoubtedly popular in Cleveland, the orders for season tickets will begin to pour in.

Here was a conscientious former ballplayer and manager, Joe Gordon, whose way to get publicity was to be a fabulously graceful and hard-hitting second baseman. He is also a sensitive, stubborn man.

PUBLIC CRITICISM by his boss, Lane, in the past few weeks rubbed salt into the lacerations inflicted by opposing teams. Finally, in desperation he resigned at the moment when Lane was in Pittsburgh negotiating with Leo Durocher. That in itself was news, for Durocher is a renowned figure.

Then back to Cleveland. The resignation was accepted and an interim manager named. Then the bombshell. Gordon was to succeed Gordon.

When the supremely learned and shrewd Niccolo Machiavelli — and I am attempting no comparisons with any of the parties mentioned above — wrote "The Prince" and established for himself a sinister reputation that has prevailed for 4½ centuries, he was not expressing his personal views about government.

Those were exemplary, even by our standards. He was telling a prince how to succeed in the atmosphere of his time. His real views were in another book, "The Discourses on Livy." "The Prince" was stark realism.

To succeed in running a baseball club there must be public interest. Winning the pennant is good but it can get monotonous as it has with the Yankees.

This interest Lane has captured in a massive, spectacular manner. However, study of Machiavelli reveals that he lost faith in certain princes not because of their methods, but because they did not succeed.

The moral I draw, fortified by ancient lore, is that Lane and Gordon must succeed, too. "Next year" must be better.

Agricultural Merry-Go-Round

While Nikita Khrushchev was inspecting U.S. farm methods in Iowa last week, Secretary of Agriculture Benson was taking off on an overseas tour that includes several Iron Curtain countries and no less than 11 congressional committees were planning or embarking on junkets abroad.

Astonishing as it may seem, all the travel activity was related in one of those oddball situations that characterize modern world conditions.

Mr. Khrushchev represents a bloc of nations chronically plagued with inadequate farm production. He is interested in making good on his oft-repeated pledge to overtake the U.S. in that field in the not-too-distant future.

Mr. Benson represents a nation chronically plagued with too much farm production. He is interested in getting rid of some of its overflowing surpluses.

His trip is aimed at expanding the use of the 1954 law which permits the sale of surpluses to other countries. Some of these fall within the domain of Mr. Khrushchev.

One of the problems of this program, however, is that the purchasing nations frequently are so short of dollars that they pay for the foodstuffs with credits to be spent within their own borders.

To keep these foreign credits from becoming as much of an economic headache as the surpluses at home, the U.S. spends them for such things as foreign technical books and papers, exchange visits, buildings for U.S. use and for junketing congressmen.

So, while some of the legislators will be paying their expenses out of the record travel appropriations passed by the recent session of Congress, many will be putting the tab on the overseas farm surplus credits.

Putting it all together, it takes on the earmarks of a crazy game of tag. While Mr. Khrushchev is trying to figure out what U.S. methods will help him boost Communist farm output, Mr. Benson is trying to sell Communist nations more U.S. agriculture surpluses, which will increase the stockpile of foreign credits.

And while Mr. Benson is engaged in that pursuit, congressmen are trying to use up more of the fat cash reserves accumulated from surplus sales already made.

Meanwhile, the congressmen have left behind them — untouched on their desks on Capitol Hill — Mr. Benson's proposals for reducing the farm surpluses.

Such are the peculiarities of modern civilization.

Secrets Of A Red Reviewing Stand

Who, besides Nikita Khrushchev, will be standing next to Mao Tse-tung Thursday when Communist China's officialdom gathers to watch the big Peiping parade celebrating the 10th anniversary of the Red regime?

That is typical of the questions passing between old China hands as indications of a new purge revive the interesting—and sometimes grim—Western game of trying to figure out what really is going on behind the Bamboo Curtain.

The purge began to be suspected when dispatches reported some new shuffling among the Chinese hierarchy in the wake of admissions that previous production reports had been wildly exaggerated.

The most thought-provoking change was the replacement of Marshal Peng Teh-huai as defense minister. He was a principal speaker at last year's October 1 observance. He said:

"There is every reason to believe that within about three years the people of our country will be able to enjoy a happy life of abundance, and the backwardness and poverty brought about by thousands of years of reactionary rule will exist only in memory."

Less than a year later, his words were shown by his own colleagues to be mere propaganda. They reported, after a secret conference in August, that the output of usable steel, backbone of the new "progress plan," had fallen more than three million tons short of claims in 1958. As a result, the 1959 goal was trimmed by six million tons.

Coupled with the obvious slowdown in the communes program, the production report stuck pins in the balloon of Mao's boasts that Red China had found the magic antidote for economic immaturity.

So the experts will be watching for clues at Thursday's fete to whether Peng is getting the full-blown oblivion treatment or merely being down-graded from an exalted post.

But whoever happens to be present, it would be equally interesting to know what Nikita Khrushchev will be telling production-worried Mao about what he saw in America.

The Unsung Birthday

With the world's No. 1 Communist holding the spotlight on his visit to America, it is not surprising that the birthday of one of his most frustrated subsidiaries passed virtually unnoticed.

It is doubtful that even the hard-core members of the Communist Part of the United States felt there was cause for celebration on the 40th anniversary of its founding.

Parties have come and gone in this land of liberty, but it would be hard to find one that ever put in four rockier decades than the U.S. Reds. And the reason is that neither its motives nor its methods were based on liberty.

Almost before it had drawn its first squalling breath, it was driven underground by the zealous attacks of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer. After the furor died down, the party did gain a limited measure of respectability during the Roaring '20s, which was enhanced by the demoralizing depression of the '30s.

But the servile switch in party line that followed the Stalin-Hitler pact of 1939 brought the Reds' tenuous ascendancy to an end. A comeback attempt sparked by the World War II alliance with the West was shortly extinguished by the takeover in Czechoslovakia, the Berlin blockade and other Stalinist extensions of the Iron Curtain.

More recently, the Hungarian blood-letting turned the stomachs of some who had endured all else, leaving only a vestige of the most fanatical Marxists. And some of those, trained in the Stalin tradition, hold little truck with Khrushchev and his crew.

So it is doubtful that what is left of the Communist Party of the U.S. has much faith in the old saw that life begins at 40.

The Power Of Faith

By Howard Brodie

We often think of artists as being moody, egotistical, head-strong geniuses too wrapped up in themselves to ever think of anyone or anything but their work.

But Fra Angelico, the great Renaissance master, was an artist of such consummate humility that he knelt while painting his "Madonna" and wept while he worked on his "Crucifixion."

This simple man of God, who gave up a promising career as a painter of miniatures to enter a Dominican monastery, never lifted his brush without praying for inspiration. The scenes of the life of Christ he painted on the walls of the Monastery of San Marco in Florence are responsible for that building today being regarded as one of the great art treasures of the world.

Said art critic John Ruskin of this good monk's life work: "He bequeathed to the world the most radiant consummation of the pure ideal of Christianity."

AFL-CIO Avoids Teamster Fight

By Victor Riesel

SAN FRANCISCO

Terror rides the highway. It rides every day right up front with at least 2,000 truck drivers who hate Jimmy Hoffa's guts. Those are 2,000 Teamsters about whom we now know. There are probably tens of thousands more. But those 2,000 men, whose strong hands guide mammoth vans "across-the-road," are members of one big local which heaved out Hoffa's men in recent elections. They want to get out of the Teamster's musclehood.

Victor Riesel

But if they took their American civil rights seriously and refused to stay in Hoffa's empire and refused to pay him dues, they would be wiped out of their jobs.

Jimmy Hoffa's men would close off American cities to them. They would not be permitted to unload and deliver. So they are prisoners —reform law or no reform law.

These Teamsters are from Cincinnati. The shame of the cities of America was whipped out into the open on the floor of the AFL-CIO convention when its leader, George Meany, was acidly explaining to critical former CIO officials why the powerful 13-million member federation had not launched a rival teamster union and openly declared civil war against Hoffa right across the land.

MEANY, with his hatred for Hoffa dripping over the microphone disclosed that he had talked with anti-Hoffa forces about a counter-offensive. He said:

"In one large city in this country there has been a fight on for the last year and a half between the officers at the head of the Teamsters in that city and the forces of Hoffa with all his goons and with every possible dollar he could throw in there.

"These thousands of members, 10,000 roughly, in three or four local unions, have gone through elections and they have beaten Hoffa every step of the way.

"You say, well, its very simple —Why don't you start there? Why don't you charter that group; I will tell you why we don't charter them and why they haven't applied for a charter.

"Two thousand make their living (driving) over-the-road, they leave that particular city and go 50 or 100 miles away every day of their working lives. And those 2,000, according to what the Teamsters representatives in that city tell us, these 2,000 would be sacrificed. It would not be possible for them to go to another city in complete control of the Hoffa forces and deliver their goods. So they would have to sacrificed."

MEANY DISCLOSED that he had been talking to rebel Teamsters. Always he asks them, "Can you live if you get out of the Teamsters?" Always they say "No."

Hoffa and his graying eminence, Harold Gibbons, have warned that any local bolting the empire would be destroyed within 24 hours.

"So the AFL-CIO executive council has talked about this matter and they have felt that it is the better part of wisdom not to attempt to charter a new teamsters union," Meany said grimly. "Maybe this situation will change and maybe it will not.

"However, until it changes to the point where we have some assurance that these people can live, that they can form a new union away from these people (Hoffa), we have got to mark time."

But the militants of the old CIO don't want to mark time. They want to hurtle their way into the Teamsters Union.

They want to work undercover against Hoffa. They want money and manpower given to the anti-Hoffa underground opposition before the word underground takes on a literal as well as a figurative meaning.

Carey did not want to launch a rival teamsters brotherhood. Instead, he wanted the labor movement to stop talking and go in and help clean corruption out of the Hoffa domain. And Hoffa along with it.

There was silence when he finished. Perhaps terror on the highways impressed the delegates. Or perhaps they just didn't take it as a personal insult.

Congress Boosted, Did Not Trim Budget

What's more important today to 170 million Americans than the purchasing power of the dollar which has already declined 38 cents since the war ended in 1945?

David Lawrence

What's more important to the American people than the terrible effects than can ensue if inflation is continued?

The most important news that concerns the American pocketbook of today and tomorrow is what happened in the last session of Congress to promote or retard extravagant spending by the federal government.

The politicians, including the Democratic leaders in control of Congress, have boasted in the last two weeks that they cut the President's budget—that during the last session they were, indeed, better economizers than he was.

Congress, on the other hand, passed its own "pork barrel" legislation adding 751 million of fu-works"—enacting it over the President's veto.

There were some proposals by the President for spending in future years which were reduced by about one billion but, all in all, Congress saddled the country with a bill of 11½ billion for future spending which the President didn't recommend.

It is this kind of reckless use of the appropriation process that threatens the stability of the American dollar in future years.

How many people, outside financial circles, will get the point? They'll get it in later years perhaps when the dollar declines still further. The saboteurs of 1959, however, will by that time have been forgotten.

Getting Public Attention

By Raymond Moley

I am not a sports writer and no expert in that field. I have always believed that the good sports writers stand with the foremost in fine writing.

While this piece deals with sporting news, it concerns a much broader aspect of the high art of managing public opinion by getting attention.

That is, of course, the vital element in political life, in which I do have some special knowledge.

The events come close to me because I have from the age of 10, followed the fortunes of the Cleveland Baseball Club with all the emotional stresses and strains of youth.

PERHAPS I should draw no conclusions about General Manager Frank Lane's amazing switch from literally driving Manager Joe Gordon from his job and then in a bewildering shift rehiring him at an increase in tenure and pay.

I have been far from the scene, and when this is printed I shall be on a ship bound for the British election campaign but I suggest to all who have to do with the task of snaring public attention in any field that they note a course followed by Frank Lane which succeeded in crowding into top headlines.

This came in the face of a faltering finish by his club, with eyes turned from the poor Indians to the White Sox, Dogers, Giants, and Braves.

In Wednesday's afternoon papers in New York, Mr. K ran a poor second to Lane and Gordon. I would not, however, commend the course to beginners in politics and business.

Nor do I ascribe motives to Lane. But if his motive was to get 54,000 people into his ball park while the poor Yankees were drawing a miserable handful in Washington, his course of action accomplished just that. And with his happy ending, undoubtedly popular in Cleveland, the orders for season tickets will begin to pour in.

Here was a conscientious former ballplayer and manager, Joe Gordon, whose way to get publicity was to be a fabulously graceful and hard-hitting second baseman. He is also a sensitive, stubborn man.

PUBLIC CRITICISM by his boss, Lane, in the past few weeks rubbed salt into the lacerations inflicted by opposing teams. Finally, in desperation he resigned at the moment when Lane was in Pittsburgh negotiating with Leo Durocher. That in itself was news, for Durocher is a renowned figure.

Then back to Cleveland. The resignation was accepted and an interim manager named. Then the bombshell. Gordon was to succeed Gordon.

When the supremely learned and shrewd Niccolo Machiavelli — and I am attempting no comparisons with any of the parties mentioned above — wrote "The Prince" and established for himself a sinister reputation that has prevailed for 4½ centuries, he was not expressing his personal views about government.

Those were exemplary, even by our standards. He was telling a prince how to succeed in the atmosphere of his time. His real views were in another book, "The Discourses on Livy." "The Prince" was stark realism.

To succeed in running a baseball club there must be public interest. Winning the pennant is good but it can get monotonous as it has with the Yankees.

This interest Lane has captured in a massive, spectacular manner. However, study of Machiavelli reveals that he lost faith in certain princes not because of their methods, but because they did not succeed.

The moral I draw, fortified by ancient lore, is that Lane and Gordon must succeed, too. "Next year" must be better.

AS IF IN SHAME, nature soon covers the unmarked grave. Have you forgotten someone? Yes, our loved ones want to be remembered with a true Memorial, not simply labeled. It is possible for any family to express its sentiment adequately, eloquently, and yet, economically with a Graham and Wagner Monument, which says, "We do remember you."

someone forgotten?

AS IF IN SHAME, nature soon covers the unmarked grave. Have you forgotten someone? Yes, our loved ones want to be remembered with a true Memorial, not simply labeled. It is possible for any family to express its sentiment adequately, eloquently, and yet, economically with a Graham and Wagner Monument, which says, "We do remember you."

JAMES E. HUNTON Pastor

Fred spends about 1,000 hours each year in school. When he graduates from high school he will have sat in classrooms for 12,000 hours.

Plus homework Miss Harkins assigned nine pages of science today. Mr. Brent expects a book report tomorrow. And so it goes every school day—every year.

Don't let Fred's crowded school roster worry you. He is getting an education—the fine education every American child is entitled to. Let Fred's empty spiritual roster worry you. He is spending ZERO hours in Church School. He is getting NO religious education. And his tragedy is shared by MILLIONS OF AMERICAN YOUTH.

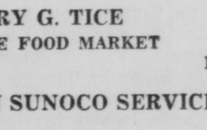

A new kind of homework is needed. By friendly encouragement, by sincere interest, by the example of our own families in faithful church life—we must inspire the Freds and their parents to take advantage of the spiritual opportunities that America's churches offer.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Fred spends about 1,000 hours each year in school. When he graduates from high school he will have sat in classrooms for 12,000 hours.

Plus homework Miss Harkins assigned nine pages of science today. Mr. Brent expects a book report tomorrow. And so it goes every school day—every year.

Don't let Fred's crowded school roster worry you. He is getting an education—the fine education every American child is entitled to. Let Fred's empty spiritual roster worry you. He is spending ZERO hours in Church School. He is getting NO religious education. And his tragedy is shared by MILLIONS OF AMERICAN YOUTH.

A new kind of homework is needed. By friendly encouragement, by sincere interest, by the example of our own families in faithful church life—we must inspire the Freds and their parents to take advantage of the spiritual opportunities that America's churches offer.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

ELHS Rips Girard, 22-6, To Register First Win Of Season

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Mackall, Prince And Zelch Score

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The East Liverpool Potters tasted victory for the first time in this young football season—a sweet 22-6 win over Girard Friday night.

Striking twice on the ground and once through the air Coach Lou Venditti's team crowded all its scoring into the first half as the Girard High Indians played the Potters on even terms in the third and fourth quarters.

A crowd of 2,500 turned out on another perfect football night at the Girard stadium.

THE DEFEAT marked the second straight for Coach Bill Battin's Girard team, while East Liverpool is hitting .500 for the season, with the one victory in two starts.

The game was only 2 minutes and 15 seconds old when Kenny Cunningham, the Potters' safety man, gathered in a punt on his own 42-yard line.

Cunningham started to his left and handed off to Bob Mackall, who took the pigskin and dashed 58 yards for the first touchdown of the evening.

On a tackle eligible play, Cunningham tossed to big Craig Burbick for the two points after touchdown and the Potters had an 8-0 lead.

Girard settled down and the Blue and White had to wait until 3:15 was left in the second period before hitting paydirt again.

This time the touchdown came through the air on a 10-yard pass play, Mackall to end Ron Prince. Henry Roach then scooted around the right side for the two extra points for a 16-0 margin.

THE POTTERS capped their scoring with 52 seconds remaining in the first half. Jim Zelch plunged over from one yard out to make it 22-0. A pass attempt, Mackall to Prince, for the extra points failed.

Mackall scored in the third quarter, but the touchdown was not allowed. A Potter lineman was detected holding and the infraction cost the Blue and White 15 yards and the TD.

The Potters took to the air more last night than against Youngstown South, throwing 13 passes and completing 6 for 71 yards.

On the ground, they picked up a net of 188 yards rushing with Mackall, Zelch and Roach chalking up the yardage.

Zelch, running from his left halfback spot, was the leading ground gainer Friday night with 89 yards.

He broke loose for runs of 25, 15, 14 and 12 yards. Mackall gained 59 yards from his position at quarterback.

When called upon, Roach responded with several good spurts and substitute Joe Thompson chipped in with some valuable yardage and looked sharp on defense.

THE POTTERS passing game wouldn't have been so successful if it hadn't been for their two glue-fingered ends. Ron Prince and Tim Archer, short in height as ends go, made several spectacular catches.

It was a 28-yard pass play from Kenny Cunningham to Archer that set up the Potters' third touchdown late in the second period.

On another occasion a Girard defender deflected a pass from Mackall, but Archer cleverly grabbed the ball and held on for a 15-yard gain.

East Liverpool faced one of the better backs that they'll see this season in Lou Antonucci, a speedster who kept the Potter defense alert throughout the evening.

He picked up 96 yards on the ground as Girard showed 152 yards rushing. Along with Antonucci in the Girard backfield were Andy Aurilio and Butch Kovachick, who both proved effective runners.

Antonucci scored Girard's lone touchdown on a 10-yard dash around his own right side. The TD came with 7:15 still remaining in the third quarter.

The Girard star attempted to run for the extra point but was stopped.

Defensively for the Potters, Skip Hall, Jim Bise and Archer kept the Indians pretty well hemmed in. Hall broke through to dump several Girard backs for sizable losses.

MACKALL'S 58-yard punt return gave him his third touchdown of the season. He tallied twice in the Youngstown South game last week.

Girard failed to make enough yardage for a first down after the kickoff and was forced to punt early in the contest.

Larry Emch booted to Cunningham on the Potter 42. Cunningham grabbed the ball and handed off to Mackall, who went sailing down the sideline for the score after receiving some timely blocking from Hall, Burbick and Charlie Davidson.

Both teams played at a standstill until late in the second quarter. Archer broke through to partially block a punt by Emch and the Potters took over on the Girard 30.

Zelch raced 12 yards to the 18 and a first down. Mackall picked up nine more to the nine. Zelch made his way to the five, but a 5-yard penalty set the ball back on the 10.

One play later Mackall fired to Prince in the end zone for the second touchdown.

Zelch set up the Potters' final TD when he intercepted a Girard pass on his own 43 and scooted back to the Girard 33.

From there the Potters displayed a little razzle-dazzle as Mackall pitched out to Cunningham, who passed to Archer on the Girard five. The play covered 28 yards and set the stage for Zelch to score two plays later from the one-yard line.

Edwards Sparkles In Toronto's 28-0 Win Over Wellsville

Red Knights' Star Scores Two TD's

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Lack of a strong running attack figured prominently in Wellsville High's first football defeat of the 1959 season Friday night following a tie in the opening game last week.

The Tigers fell before the dazzling speed of Toronto's Bobby Edwards & Co., 28-0.

The 34th meeting of the two Ohio Valley rivals drew an estimated 2,500 fans to Toronto High's stadium. This year's battle, however, lacked much of the luster of previous games.

—:—

TORONTO dominated things and smothered the Wellsville offense most of the time. The Tigers were held to only five first downs and 44 yards on the ground.

Edwards, jet-propelled halfback of Coach Earl Biederman, stole the show with his bursting speed and rambled for two touchdowns—one on a thrilling 67-yard dash down the sidelines.

Fullback George Fisher sledgehammered his way to another pair of touchdowns and turned in a rock 'em, sock 'em defensive performance.

The Knights preserved their status of being unbeaten and unscored upon in two games and pulled even in victories in the series with Wellsville, which began in 1921. Each squad has won 17 times.

Coach Ken Woods sorely missed fullback Bob Delposen who suffered a dislocated shoulder in Wellsville's 8-8 tie with Leetonia last week.

THE TIGER offense stalled badly without Delposen in the lineup and was hampered more by only the limited appearance of halfback Ron Stevens, who is nursing an injury. Stevens, playing mostly defense, carried the ball only once.

Leo Pearson, a hard - running freshman, took over for the injured Delposen, but lacked the all-around running experience to dent the strong Toronto defense.

Meanwhile, Edwards, Fisher and Bob Montgomery, a 175-pound senior, alternated in carrying the Toronto attack effectively. The trio accounted for most of the 271 yards gained rushing by the Knights.

Edwards alone outgained the Wellsville squad, twisting and turning for 119 yards rushing and 36 more by passes thrown by quarterback John Loughbridge.

Wellsville managed only one serious threat scoring and the failure of one of the team captains to signal for a time-out resulted in at least one touchdown not being scored.

The big opportunity missed by the Tigers came in the final moments of the hard-fought second period after substitute quarterback Roger Ours had sparked a drive deep into Toronto territory.

OURS, taking over signal-calling duties of Bob Kiggans, moved the squad 51 yards in two plays by virtue of two well-placed aerial strikes, one for 31 yards.

With the ball resting on the Toronto 5, Ours sneaked to the 2-yard stripe and was downed with only 12 seconds remaining on the scoreboard clock. The Tigers went into a huddle without calling a time-out and the halftime whistle sounded before the play could be put in progress.

The two passes thrown by Ours were good for 51 yards and combined with 18 yards rushing by Wellsville in the first half amounted to 60 yards gained in 24 minutes of action.

Defensively, the Tigers showed improvement, with Kiggans, Bob Brown, Dick Brown, Phil Baldwin and Merriman doing most of the tackling.

Senior Bob Brown, a Wellsville co-captain, was one bright spot in an otherwise dismal night.

In addition to a strong defensive game, Brown got off four booming punts of 41, 40, 42 and 44 yards for an outstanding average of 42 yards.

THE KNIGHTS, winner over Carrollton, 20-0, in their season's opener, got rolling early in the game and owned a 6-0 lead with only four minutes elapsed. Edwards slashed off tackle with 8:25 remaining for Toronto's first touchdown, capping a 70-yard drive covered in nine plays.

Midway through the same period, the 135-pound scatback pushed the Knights onward to a 12-0 lead when he flashed 67 yards down the sidelines and eluded all defenders with his bursting speed. Both extra points attempts by passing were broken up by the Tiger defenders.

In the second period, Loughridge flipped a nine-yard pass to Fisher for Toronto's third touchdown. The fourth score came in the final quarter on Fisher's short buck. The two conversions came on a rush by Loughridge and a pass to Montgomery.

The Tigers now turn their attention to another rugged opponent for next Friday in Chester High's Panthers.

Delposen will not be available for further duty until at least the middle of October, while the status of injured Phillip Vernon, a letterman guard, remains a question mark. Vernon has missed the first two games.

Toronto hosts Oak Ridge of near Toledo for its homecoming game next week.

ELHS Rips Girard, 22-6, To Register First Win Of Season

Mackall, Prince And Zelch Score

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The East Liverpool Potters tasted victory for the first time in this young football season—a sweet 22-6 win over Girard Friday night.

Striking twice on the ground and once through the air Coach Lou Venditti's team crowded all its scoring into the first half as the Girard High Indians played the Potters on even terms in the third and fourth quarters.

A crowd of 2,500 turned out on another perfect football night at the Girard stadium.

THE DEFEAT marked the second straight for Coach Bill Battin's Girard team, while East Liverpool is hitting .500 for the season, with the one victory in two starts.

The game was only 2 minutes and 15 seconds old when Kenny Cunningham, the Potters' safety man, gathered in a punt on his own 42-yard line.

Cunningham started to his left and handed off to Bob Mackall, who took the pigskin and dashed 58 yards for the first touchdown of the evening.

On a tackle eligible play, Cunningham tossed to big Craig Burbick for the two points after touchdown and the Potters had an 8-0 lead.

Girard settled down and the Blue and White had to wait until 3:15 was left in the second period before hitting paydirt again.

This time the touchdown came through the air on a 10-yard pass play, Mackall to end Ron Prince. Henry Roach then scooted around the right side for the two extra points for a 16-0 margin.

THE POTTERS capped their scoring with 52 seconds remaining in the first half. Jim Zelch plunged over from one yard out to make it 22-0. A pass attempt, Mackall to Prince, for the extra points failed.

Mackall scored in the third quarter, but the touchdown was not allowed. A Potter lineman was detected holding and the infraction cost the Blue and White 15 yards and the TD.

The Potters took to the air more last night than against Youngstown South, throwing 13 passes and completing 6 for 71 yards.

On the ground, they picked up a net of 188 yards rushing with Mackall, Zelch and Roach chalking up the yardage.

Zelch, running from his left halfback spot, was the leading ground gainer Friday night with 89 yards.

He broke loose for runs of 25, 15, 14 and 12 yards. Mackall gained 59 yards from his position at quarterback.

When called upon, Roach responded with several good spurts and substitute Joe Thompson chipped in with some valuable yardage and looked sharp on defense.

THE POTTERS passing game wouldn't have been so successful if it hadn't been for their two glue-fingered ends. Ron Prince and Tim Archer, short in height as ends go, made several spectacular catches.

It was a 28-yard pass play from Kenny Cunningham to Archer that set up the Potters' third touchdown late in the second period.

On another occasion a Girard defender deflected a pass from Mackall, but Archer cleverly grabbed the ball and held on for a 15-yard gain.

East Liverpool faced one of the better backs that they'll see this season in Lou Antonucci, a speedster who kept the Potter defense alert throughout the evening.

He picked up 96 yards on the ground as Girard showed 152 yards rushing. Along with Antonucci in the Girard backfield were Andy Aurilio and Butch Kovachick, who both proved effective runners.

Antonucci scored Girard's lone touchdown on a 10-yard dash around his own right side. The TD came with 7:15 still remaining in the third quarter.

The Girard star attempted to run for the extra point but was stopped.

Defensively for the Potters, Skip Hall, Jim Bise and Archer kept the Indians pretty well hemmed in. Hall broke through to dump several Girard backs for sizable losses.

MACKALL'S 58-yard punt return gave him his third touchdown of the season. He tallied twice in the Youngstown South game last week.

Girard failed to make enough yardage for a first down after the kickoff and was forced to punt early in the contest.

Larry Emch booted to Cunningham on the Potter 42. Cunningham grabbed the ball and handed off to Mackall, who went sailing down the sideline for the score after receiving some timely blocking from Hall, Burbick and Charlie Davidson.

Both teams played at a standstill until late in the second quarter. Archer broke through to partially block a punt by Emch and the Potters took over on the Girard 30.

Zelch raced 12 yards to the 18 and a first down. Mackall picked up nine more to the nine. Zelch made his way to the five, but a 5-yard penalty set the ball back on the 10.

One play later Mackall fired to Prince in the end zone for the second touchdown.

Zelch set up the Potters' final TD when he intercepted a Girard pass on his own 43 and scooted back to the Girard 33.

From there the Potters displayed a little razzle-dazzle as Mackall pitched out to Cunningham, who passed to Archer on the Girard five. The play covered 28 yards and set the stage for Zelch to score two plays later from the one-yard line.

Edwards Sparkles In Toronto's 28-0 Win Over Wellsville

Red Knights' Star Scores Two TD's

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Lack of a strong running attack figured prominently in Wellsville High's first football defeat of the 1959 season Friday night following a tie in the opening game last week.

The Tigers fell before the dazzling speed of Toronto's Bobby Edwards & Co., 28-0.

The 34th meeting of the two Ohio Valley rivals drew an estimated 2,500 fans to Toronto High's stadium. This year's battle, however, lacked much of the luster of previous games.

—:—

TORONTO dominated things and smothered the Wellsville offense most of the time. The Tigers were held to only five first downs and 44 yards on the ground.

Edwards, jet-propelled halfback of Coach Earl Biederman, stole the show with his bursting speed and rambled for two touchdowns—one on a thrilling 67-yard dash down the sidelines.

Fullback George Fisher sledgehammered his way to another pair of touchdowns and turned in a rock 'em, sock 'em defensive performance.

The Knights preserved their status of being unbeaten and unscored upon in two games and pulled even in victories in the series with Wellsville, which began in 1921. Each squad has won 17 times.

Coach Ken Woods sorely missed fullback Bob Delposen who suffered a dislocated shoulder in Wellsville's 8-8 tie with Leetonia last week.

THE TIGER offense stalled badly without Delposen in the lineup and was hampered more by only the limited appearance of halfback Ron Stevens, who is nursing an injury. Stevens, playing mostly defense, carried the ball only once.

Leo Pearson, a hard - running freshman, took over for the injured Delposen, but lacked the all-around running experience to dent the strong Toronto defense.

Meanwhile, Edwards, Fisher and Bob Montgomery, a 175-pound senior, alternated in carrying the Toronto attack effectively. The trio accounted for most of the 271 yards gained rushing by the Knights.

Edwards alone outgained the Wellsville squad, twisting and turning for 119 yards rushing and 36 more by passes thrown by quarterback John Loughbridge.

Wellsville managed only one serious threat scoring and the failure of one of the team captains to signal for a time-out resulted in at least one touchdown not being scored.

The big opportunity missed by the Tigers came in the final moments of the hard-fought second period after substitute quarterback Roger Ours had sparked a drive deep into Toronto territory.

OURS, taking over signal-calling duties of Bob Kiggans, moved the squad 51 yards in two plays by virtue of two well-placed aerial strikes, one for 31 yards.

With the ball resting on the Toronto 5, Ours sneaked to the 2-yard stripe and was downed with only 12 seconds remaining on the scoreboard clock. The Tigers went into a huddle without calling a time-out and the halftime whistle sounded before the play could be put in progress.

The two passes thrown by Ours were good for 51 yards and combined with 18 yards rushing by Wellsville in the first half amounted to 60 yards gained in 24 minutes of action.

Defensively, the Tigers showed improvement, with Kiggans, Bob Brown, Dick Brown, Phil Baldwin and Merriman doing most of the tackling.

Senior Bob Brown, a Wellsville co-captain, was one bright spot in an otherwise dismal night.

In addition to a strong defensive game, Brown got off four booming punts of 41, 40, 42 and 44 yards for an outstanding average of 42 yards.

THE KNIGHTS, winner over Carrollton, 20-0, in their season's opener, got rolling early in the game and owned a 6-0 lead with only four minutes elapsed. Edwards slashed off tackle with 8:25 remaining for Toronto's first touchdown, capping a 70-yard drive covered in nine plays.

Midway through the same period, the 135-pound scatback pushed the Knights onward to a 12-0 lead when he flashed 67 yards down the sidelines and eluded all defenders with his bursting speed. Both extra points attempts by passing were broken up by the Tiger defenders.

In the second period, Loughridge flipped a nine-yard pass to Fisher for Toronto's third touchdown. The fourth score came in the final quarter on Fisher's short buck. The two conversions came on a rush by Loughridge and a pass to Montgomery.

The Tigers now turn their attention to another rugged opponent for next Friday in Chester High's Panthers.

Delposen will not be available for further duty until at least the middle of October, while the status of injured Phillip Vernon, a letterman guard, remains a question mark. Vernon has missed the first two games.

Toronto hosts Oak Ridge of near Toledo for its homecoming game next week.

Russell-Lake Combine For Winning Score

BEAVER — Sharpshooting Ken Russell and an unheralded guard proved the difference here Friday night in Midland's 14-7 victory over Beaver.

Quarterback Russell who completed 7 of 9 passes during the contest, fired a touchdown pass to end Gene Lake with only three minutes left in the game to break a 7-7 tie and give the Leopards their opening WPIAL victory.

The ball was on the Beaver 16-yard line when Russell threw to the five-yard line where Lake grabbed the pass and raced into the end zone with the winning touchdown.

Frank Deramo, a guard, scored Midland's first touchdown in the opening period when he alertly scopped up a fumble and ran 30 yards for the TD.

Martin Schulte added the extra point when he swept the right side.

Beaver tied the score at 7-7 in the second period when Ed Bell raced around the right side for 37 yards and a touchdown. John Bloom kicked the extra point.

A short punt set up Midland's tie-breaking touchdown. Beaver was forced to punt out of its end zone and the ball went only to the 30-yard line.

In three plays the Leopards were on the 16 from where Russell hit Lake with the touchdown pass.

The victory was Midland's third straight. Coach John Petchel's forces won two exhibition contests over Beaver Falls and Pittsburgh Taylor before last night's opening WPIAL battle.

Church Loses Appeal In Tax Exemption Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Evangelical Mennonite Church in Beavercreek Twp. near Kettering has lost an appeal to have the second floor of the church building exempted from the property tax.

The State Tax Appeals Board emphasized Friday that the place where a clergyman lives cannot be exempted, because that portion of a building is not used exclusively for public worship.

The pastor of the Evangelical Mennonite Church lives on the second floor of the building. The board said the first floor and a garage can be exempted, since they are used for public worship only.

Injury-Hit Vikings Drop Third Straight

A first period touchdown was all that Hopedale needed to defeat Newell's Memorial Stadium.

It marked the third straight setback for Coach Pete Horoszko's injury riddled squad which last night lost the services of quarterback Joe Graham who suffered a broken collarbone in the first half.

Hopedale recovered a fumble on the Newell 15-yard line following a punt and that was the only break the visitors needed.

Two plays later they carried to the three-yard line from where Beadling went over for the only touchdown. Redmond ran for the point after touchdown.

Hopedale had two other touchdowns called back, one in the second quarter and the other in the third, because of penalties.

Newell threatened in the first quarter but was stopped by a fumble on the Hopedale 33.

The game was marred by fumbles and penalties. Hopedale was penalized 130 yards.

Moniteau Ace Scores 4 TD's Against Rams

HOOKSTOWN — South Side fell short in their bid come up with a "Dad's Day" victory here Friday night.

Fullback Pat Stone scored all of his teams points as Moniteau posted a 25-19 victory over the Rams.

Stone tallied four touchdowns, including one 33-yard gallop, and kicked an extra point to provide all of Moniteau's scoring punch.

The visitors led all the way but South Side made it close before going down to its third straight defeat.

Rich Ashcroft hit paydirt twice for the Rams. One came on a 13-yard run, Dan Frasier passed to Ashcroft for the second TD.

Dodgers Win, Nail One-Game Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jack Meyer, a right - hander who's been a sore-arm guy with Philadelphia, hadn't been a winner in more than three months. Mostly a reliever, he hadn't pitched more than five innings in better than a year. He hadn't beaten Milwaukee in four years.

But Friday night he had the Braves hangin' by their thumbs.

Behind Meyer's four-hit, 5 2-3-inning shutout relief job, the last place Phillies beat the Braves and Lew Burdette 6-3 in the rain at Milwaukee, plunking them out of a first place tie with Los Angeles in the fast-closing National League race.

The Dodgers, now one game ahead with two to play, put away a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Gil Hodges' 11th-inning home run and dandy relief work from Larry Sherry.

Los Angeles can nail the pennant today—if the Dodgers can couple victory over the Cubs with another victory by the Phils. A sweep of their two at Chicago and the Dodgers are home free, no matter what the Braves do today and Sunday.

Southpaw Johnny Podres (14-8) is the Dodger choice today against Dave Hillman (7-11). The Braves shoot with Warren Spahn (20-15) against the Phils' Robin Roberts (15-16).

San Francisco? The third place Giants trail by 2½ and still have three to play after Friday night's rain out at St. Louis. It's Sam Jones (20-15) and Jack Sanford (15-12) in a twi-night pair today against the Cards' Vinegar Bend Mizell (13-9) and Larry Jackson (13-13).

The Phillies made it four in a row over Burdette, the 21-game winner who hasn't beaten them since May 22. They scored twice in the first and then tagged the big right-hander with his 15th defeat in a four-run third capped by Gene Freese's 22nd homer, with two on.

Hodges, who hit his 25th homer off losing reliever Bill Henry, gave the Dodgers a 4-2 lead with a two-out, two-run double in the sixth. But homers by Sammy Taylor, in the seventh off starter Don Drysdale, and Ernie Banks, in the eighth off Danny McDevitt, gave the Cubs their third tie of the game. It was Banks' 45th, tying Mathews for the major league home run lead.

Sherry (6-2) came on in the 10th with two on and one out — and fanned Banks and got Walt Moryn on a grounder. He retired Al Dark on a pop up and struck out pinch-hitter Dale Long to end it in the 11th with the tying run on second.

The only other games scheduled were in the AL. Detroit beat the White Sox 6-5, but New York nailed third place over the Tigers with a 5-2 victory over Baltimore. Cleveland beat Kansas City twice, 8-2 and 8-7, and Boston belted Washington 10-4.

Southern Cal Trounces Pitt, 23-0; Miami Wins

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

You're a college football coach. Your team has gone through a miserable 2-8 season—the worst in the history of the school—scoring only 88 points in the process.

Something must be done.

Andy Gustafson, University of Miami pilot, found himself in that predicament last winter. Mulling it all over, he decided to try a new offense. It had to be better than last year's.

He calls it a multiple offense and it got its first test Friday night against Tulane. It worked. Miami won, 26-7. The defeat was Tulane's second straight.

Bob Rosbaugh scored two of Miami's touchdowns and Frank Bouffard the other. But it was the sharp passing of Fran Curci that kept the Green Wave off balance. At one time he hit seven bullseyes in a row. One of his passes was a scoring flip to Rosbaugh.

In other top games, Southern California whipped Pitt, 23-0, George Washington turned back Boston University, 18-14 and Iowa State trimmed Denver 28-12.

Willie Wood got off a 31-yard field goal and Jim Conroy bulled over from the 1 for 10 Southern Cal points in the first quarter. That was all the Trojans needed.

Most attention will be riveted today on Evanston, Ill., where Oklahoma takes on Northwestern in the TV game of the day.

This will be the opener for both teams. The Sooners, ranked No. 2 in this week's Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters, are in bad shape as a result of a case of banquet food poisoning that struck down 12 players.

At best, Oklahoma did not figure to have a sinecure against Northwestern, rated No. 10 in the AP poll and the dark horse in the Big Ten. Bud Wilkinson's operatives had been rated 6-point favorites. Now they are down to even money.

LSU, defending national champion, plays Texas Christian in a night game in Baton Rouge, La.

Lisbon Wins Tri-County Opener Over Minerva

LISBON — The Lisbon Blue Devils successfully opend their Tri-County season with a well-earned 14-6 victory over Minerva here Friday night.

Dick Bowling, gave Lisbon the lead midway through the first period when he plunged over from the one-yard line. Tom Brooks ran for the extra points for an 8-0 margin.

Minerva's Jim Davidson kept the Blue Devils in hot water when he scooted seven yards in the first quarter to bring his team within two points, 8-6.

Lisbon's second touchdown came on a fourth down situation when Paul Fry smacked over from the three-yard line.

Russell-Lake Combine For Winning Score

BEAVER — Sharpshooting Ken Russell and an unheralded guard proved the difference here Friday night in Midland's 14-7 victory over Beaver.

Quarterback Russell who completed 7 of 9 passes during the contest, fired a touchdown pass to end Gene Lake with only three minutes left in the game to break a 7-7 tie and give the Leopards their opening WPIAL victory.

The ball was on the Beaver 16-yard line when Russell threw to the five-yard line where Lake grabbed the pass and raced into the end zone with the winning touchdown.

Frank Deramo, a guard, scored Midland's first touchdown in the opening period when he alertly scopped up a fumble and ran 30 yards for the TD.

Martin Schulte added the extra point when he swept the right side.

Beaver tied the score at 7-7 in the second period when Ed Bell raced around the right side for 37 yards and a touchdown. John Bloom kicked the extra point.

A short punt set up Midland's tie-breaking touchdown. Beaver was forced to punt out of its end zone and the ball went only to the 30-yard line.

In three plays the Leopards were on the 16 from where Russell hit Lake with the touchdown pass.

The victory was Midland's third straight. Coach John Petchel's forces won two exhibition contests over Beaver Falls and Pittsburgh Taylor before last night's opening WPIAL battle.

Church Loses Appeal In Tax Exemption Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Evangelical Mennonite Church in Beavercreek Twp. near Kettering has lost an appeal to have the second floor of the church building exempted from the property tax.

The State Tax Appeals Board emphasized Friday that the place where a clergyman lives cannot be exempted, because that portion of a building is not used exclusively for public worship.

The pastor of the Evangelical Mennonite Church lives on the second floor of the building. The board said the first floor and a garage can be exempted, since they are used for public worship only.

Injury-Hit Vikings Drop Third Straight

A first period touchdown was all that Hopedale needed to defeat Newell's Memorial Stadium.

It marked the third straight setback for Coach Pete Horoszko's injury riddled squad which last night lost the services of quarterback Joe Graham who suffered a broken collarbone in the first half.

Hopedale recovered a fumble on the Newell 15-yard line following a punt and that was the only break the visitors needed.

Two plays later they carried to the three-yard line from where Beadling went over for the only touchdown. Redmond ran for the point after touchdown.

Hopedale had two other touchdowns called back, one in the second quarter and the other in the third, because of penalties.

Newell threatened in the first quarter but was stopped by a fumble on the Hopedale 33.

The game was marred by fumbles and penalties. Hopedale was penalized 130 yards.

Moniteau Ace Scores 4 TD's Against Rams

HOOKSTOWN — South Side fell short in their bid come up with a "Dad's Day" victory here Friday night.

Fullback Pat Stone scored all of his teams points as Moniteau posted a 25-19 victory over the Rams.

Stone tallied four touchdowns, including one 33-yard gallop, and kicked an extra point to provide all of Moniteau's scoring punch.

The visitors led all the way but South Side made it close before going down to its third straight defeat.

Rich Ashcroft hit paydirt twice for the Rams. One came on a 13-yard run, Dan Frasier passed to Ashcroft for the second TD.

Dodgers Win, Nail One-Game Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jack Meyer, a right - hander who's been a sore-arm guy with Philadelphia, hadn't been a winner in more than three months. Mostly a reliever, he hadn't pitched more than five innings in better than a year. He hadn't beaten Milwaukee in four years.

But Friday night he had the Braves hangin' by their thumbs.

Behind Meyer's four-hit, 5 2-3-inning shutout relief job, the last place Phillies beat the Braves and Lew Burdette 6-3 in the rain at Milwaukee, plunking them out of a first place tie with Los Angeles in the fast-closing National League race.

The Dodgers, now one game ahead with two to play, put away a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Gil Hodges' 11th-inning home run and dandy relief work from Larry Sherry.

Los Angeles can nail the pennant today—if the Dodgers can couple victory over the Cubs with another victory by the Phils. A sweep of their two at Chicago and the Dodgers are home free, no matter what the Braves do today and Sunday.

Southpaw Johnny Podres (14-8) is the Dodger choice today against Dave Hillman (7-11). The Braves shoot with Warren Spahn (20-15) against the Phils' Robin Roberts (15-16).

San Francisco? The third place Giants trail by 2½ and still have three to play after Friday night's rain out at St. Louis. It's Sam Jones (20-15) and Jack Sanford (15-12) in a twi-night pair today against the Cards' Vinegar Bend Mizell (13-9) and Larry Jackson (13-13).

The Phillies made it four in a row over Burdette, the 21-game winner who hasn't beaten them since May 22. They scored twice in the first and then tagged the big right-hander with his 15th defeat in a four-run third capped by Gene Freese's 22nd homer, with two on.

Hodges, who hit his 25th homer off losing reliever Bill Henry, gave the Dodgers a 4-2 lead with a two-out, two-run double in the sixth. But homers by Sammy Taylor, in the seventh off starter Don Drysdale, and Ernie Banks, in the eighth off Danny McDevitt, gave the Cubs their third tie of the game. It was Banks' 45th, tying Mathews for the major league home run lead.

Sherry (6-2) came on in the 10th with two on and one out — and fanned Banks and got Walt Moryn on a grounder. He retired Al Dark on a pop up and struck out pinch-hitter Dale Long to end it in the 11th with the tying run on second.

The only other games scheduled were in the AL. Detroit beat the White Sox 6-5, but New York nailed third place over the Tigers with a 5-2 victory over Baltimore. Cleveland beat Kansas City twice, 8-2 and 8-7, and Boston belted Washington 10-4.

Southern Cal Trounces Pitt, 23-0; Miami Wins

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

You're a college football coach. Your team has gone through a miserable 2-8 season—the worst in the history of the school—scoring only 88 points in the process.

Something must be done.

Andy Gustafson, University of Miami pilot, found himself in that predicament last winter. Mulling it all over, he decided to try a new offense. It had to be better than last year's.

He calls it a multiple offense and it got its first test Friday night against Tulane. It worked. Miami won, 26-7. The defeat was Tulane's second straight.

Bob Rosbaugh scored two of Miami's touchdowns and Frank Bouffard the other. But it was the sharp passing of Fran Curci that kept the Green Wave off balance. At one time he hit seven bullseyes in a row. One of his passes was a scoring flip to Rosbaugh.

In other top games, Southern California whipped Pitt, 23-0, George Washington turned back Boston University, 18-14 and Iowa State trimmed Denver 28-12.

Willie Wood got off a 31-yard field goal and Jim Conroy bulled over from the 1 for 10 Southern Cal points in the first quarter. That was all the Trojans needed.

Most attention will be riveted today on Evanston, Ill., where Oklahoma takes on Northwestern in the TV game of the day.

This will be the opener for both teams. The Sooners, ranked No. 2 in this week's Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters, are in bad shape as a result of a case of banquet food poisoning that struck down 12 players.

At best, Oklahoma did not figure to have a sinecure against Northwestern, rated No. 10 in the AP poll and the dark horse in the Big Ten. Bud Wilkinson's operatives had been rated 6-point favorites. Now they are down to even money.

LSU, defending national champion, plays Texas Christian in a night game in Baton Rouge, La.

Lisbon Wins Tri-County Opener Over Minerva

LISBON — The Lisbon Blue Devils successfully opend their Tri-County season with a well-earned 14-6 victory over Minerva here Friday night.

Dick Bowling, gave Lisbon the lead midway through the first period when he plunged over from the one-yard line. Tom Brooks ran for the extra points for an 8-0 margin.

Minerva's Jim Davidson kept the Blue Devils in hot water when he scooted seven yards in the first quarter to bring his team within two points, 8-6.

Lisbon's second touchdown came on a fourth down situation when Paul Fry smacked over from the three-yard line.

Lisbon scoring: Touchdowns — Bowling, Fry. Points after touchdowns—Brooks 1, (run). Minerva scoring: Touchdowns—Davidson.

Bill Approved On Relocation Of Big Sewer

At a brief special session Friday afternoon, Council gave approval to the first enabling legislation clearing the way for relocation of a section of the big Carpenters Run trunk line sanitary sewer—part of the preparation for construction of the first stage of a city freeway from California Hollow through West End to W. 3rd and Monroe Sts.

A resolution was enacted authorizing the administration to call for contractors' bids on the project and hire an engineer to supervise the work.

Relocation of the sewer will be a forerunner to the construction of the freeway, which will follow the line's present course. The cost of the work has been estimated as high as $100,000.

Financing of the work already is complete. Part of the cost was set aside when the city issued bonds to construct its interceptor sewer system, which feeds waste into the sewage treatment plant. Another portion of the cost will come out of sewage rental charges. The two local financing sources will be supplemented by a grant of about $33,000 in federal funds.

Portions of the big line also have broken, allowing raw sewage to seep into the run. These will be repaired and the line will be connected to the treatment plant. The Carpenters Run trunk is the one major sewer not now hooked into the treatment plant, which went into use early this year.

Council also approved legislation providing $2,500 out of sewage department funds for operation of the city's mechanical sewer cleaning equipment. It includes $2,000 for wages of the operators and $500 for materials and supplies. Before the machine was acquired, sewers were cleaned manually by the street department.

Although the session was set for 4:30 yesterday, it was delayed 40 minutes until there were six voting members present, enough to assure passage of the legislation on a single reading under suspension of rules. The six who attended were Councilmen H. A. Tullis, William Y. Orr, W. E. Kaiser, Samuel B. Webber, Robert W. Sample Jr. and A. Stanley Kidder. Councilman George E. Willshaw, out of town on business, was excused.

County Auto Club Shows Member Gain

Membership of the Columbiana County Motor Club totaled 9,199 at the end of August, an increase of 749 since Jan. 1, A. P. Morris, manager, reported today.

The Board of Directors approved 180 new applications for membership at the monthly meeting in Salem.

Bill Approved On Relocation Of Big Sewer

At a brief special session Friday afternoon, Council gave approval to the first enabling legislation clearing the way for relocation of a section of the big Carpenters Run trunk line sanitary sewer—part of the preparation for construction of the first stage of a city freeway from California Hollow through West End to W. 3rd and Monroe Sts.

A resolution was enacted authorizing the administration to call for contractors' bids on the project and hire an engineer to supervise the work.

Relocation of the sewer will be a forerunner to the construction of the freeway, which will follow the line's present course. The cost of the work has been estimated as high as $100,000.

Financing of the work already is complete. Part of the cost was set aside when the city issued bonds to construct its interceptor sewer system, which feeds waste into the sewage treatment plant. Another portion of the cost will come out of sewage rental charges. The two local financing sources will be supplemented by a grant of about $33,000 in federal funds.

Portions of the big line also have broken, allowing raw sewage to seep into the run. These will be repaired and the line will be connected to the treatment plant. The Carpenters Run trunk is the one major sewer not now hooked into the treatment plant, which went into use early this year.

Council also approved legislation providing $2,500 out of sewage department funds for operation of the city's mechanical sewer cleaning equipment. It includes $2,000 for wages of the operators and $500 for materials and supplies. Before the machine was acquired, sewers were cleaned manually by the street department.

Although the session was set for 4:30 yesterday, it was delayed 40 minutes until there were six voting members present, enough to assure passage of the legislation on a single reading under suspension of rules. The six who attended were Councilmen H. A. Tullis, William Y. Orr, W. E. Kaiser, Samuel B. Webber, Robert W. Sample Jr. and A. Stanley Kidder. Councilman George E. Willshaw, out of town on business, was excused.

County Auto Club Shows Member Gain

Membership of the Columbiana County Motor Club totaled 9,199 at the end of August, an increase of 749 since Jan. 1, A. P. Morris, manager, reported today.

The Board of Directors approved 180 new applications for membership at the monthly meeting in Salem.

Jud English, director of sales and services, reported a survey of schools has been completed and safety patrol equipment will be supplied to those needing new equipment. Posters and safety lessons also have been distributed.

Directors also approved the club's co-operation with County Supt. James L. McBride in conducting a safety education meeting for all school bus drivers in the county system in November.

At yesterday's meeting, Robert Clark, public activities supervisor for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., presented a program on "Adventure In Sound."

"Only through research and development do we enjoy the highest standard of living in the world," Clark said, explaining that telephonic research has advanced development of other forms of communication and allied industries.

"Sound is the universal language," Clark continued, but pointed out that less than 100 years ago it was available only at its source. Alexander Graham Bell first transmitted the human voice in 1875, the same year that Thomas Edison made the first recording.

In 1922, radio was started but stations were limited in their scope because there was no method of tying them together. After the first transcontinental telephone call was completed, the Bell system began laying cables to link the nation.

As a result the telephonic research into sound, the first talking motion picture was produced in 1927 and in 1936 one of the first transoceanic telephone cables carried King Edward VIII's abdiction of the English throne.

In the late 1940's, sound had reached the high fidelity stage where the entire tonal range from 30 to 15,000 cycles could be reproduced. That was followed by stereophonic sound which gives width and depth to high fidelity.

Clark was introduced by Herman, program chairman.

Members were reminded two "preview" meetings for the Dale Carnegie course the club will sponsor will be held Monday and Tuesday nights at 7:32 at the hotel.

The course will begin Oct. 6 for 14 weeks at Westgate School.

Lions Officials Will Speak At Local Club Anniversary

International, state and district Lions officers will be among the speakers at a dinner Wednesday night at the Travelers Hotel celebrating the 35th anniversary of the local club. It will begin at 6:30.

Final plans for the affair were announced today by George F. McCullough, zone chairman who is heading the arrangements committee.

Heading the list of officers will be Finis E. Davis of Louisville, Ky., first vice president, who is scheduled to be named president of Lions International this year.

Besides Davis, others on the program include Clarence Deherder of Columbus, state secretary, and William Archibald of Massillon, district governor.

The history of the club has been prepared by Dr. John A. Fraser, who with H. D. Rist, retired school principal, are charter members still active. The history will be related by Earl Lones.

The welcome will be extended by Mayor Fred P. Lawrence with Dr. D. A. Macedonia of Steubenville, former zone chairman, as toastmaster. Victor C. Smith, president, will introduced the guests.

James Moscato of Yorkville, assistant state attorney general and Lions International counselor, will give the invocation. Leo C. Lawrence will be the song leader with Miss Mary Jane Putt as pianist.

The program will include selections by the Sweet Adelines, the women's barbershop singers.

Besides McCullough, other members of the general committee are Dr. Fraser, Howard Tice, James Johnston, John Q. Covert, Smith, Charles Herman, Rist and John Rippeth.

Mrs. McCullough and Mrs. David McEwen are in charge of refreshments with Mrs. Herman, Mrs. Harold Howard, Mrs. Don Baxter and Mrs. Fraser Jackson in charge of table decorations.

At yesterday's meeting, Robert Clark, public activities supervisor for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., presented a program on "Adventure In Sound."

"Only through research and development do we enjoy the highest standard of living in the world," Clark said, explaining that telephonic research has advanced development of other forms of communication and allied industries.

"Sound is the universal language," Clark continued, but pointed out that less than 100 years ago it was available only at its source. Alexander Graham Bell first transmitted the human voice in 1875, the same year that Thomas Edison made the first recording.

In 1922, radio was started but stations were limited in their scope because there was no method of tying them together. After the first transcontinental telephone call was completed, the Bell system began laying cables to link the nation.

As a result the telephonic research into sound, the first talking motion picture was produced in 1927 and in 1936 one of the first transoceanic telephone cables carried King Edward VIII's abdiction of the English throne.

In the late 1940's, sound had reached the high fidelity stage where the entire tonal range from 30 to 15,000 cycles could be reproduced. That was followed by stereophonic sound which gives width and depth to high fidelity.

Clark was introduced by Herman, program chairman.

Members were reminded two "preview" meetings for the Dale Carnegie course the club will sponsor will be held Monday and Tuesday nights at 7:32 at the hotel.

The course will begin Oct. 6 for 14 weeks at Westgate School.

The suspended workers were among those returning to work Friday.

Defends Fair Trade

CLEVELAND (AP)—A defense of Ohio's new fair trade law was started in Common Pleas Court Friday by the Upjohn Co., manufacturer of vitamins. The state law under which the manufacturer can set the price does not become effective until Oct. 22.

Western Governors Pick Nixon As Their Favorite

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Western governors generally pick Vice President Richard M. Nixon as a strong favorite in their states for the Republican presidential nomination.

Their replies in an Associated Press survey sized up the Democratic race as wide open. None gave top billing to any single contender.

All five Democrats and four Republicans attending the Western Governors' Conference took part in the survey between sessions on highway safety and prison problems.

The conference covers 13 states, including Alaska, Hawaii, Oregon and Wyoming, which aren't represented. Together the 13 states can muster about a fifth of the total votes at the presidential nominating conventions.

Summing up a common view, GOP Gov. Paul Fannin said Arizona's Republicans like Nixon because he is a Westerner and has visited the state many times.

"They all know Dick Nixon and they don't know Rockefeller," he said, the last a reference to New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

The governors narrowed the GOP field to Nixon, from California, and the New York governor.

Democrats who got a nod were Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Stuart Symington of Missouri, Lyndon Johnson of Texas and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota—and Adlai Stevenson.

No governor of either party mentioned California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown, only Western chief executive to show signs of presidential ambitions. His proposal to endorse a candidate favorable to the West was rejected at a meeting of Democratic governors here Friday.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Funeral services will be held here Monday for John N. Darrow, 70, stockbroker and financier who died Thursday night while driving to his home on Mayfield Road. Her Temper More Even

Mrs. K At News Parley As Sharp As Famous Mr. K

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nina Khrushchev, in her first formal news conference, showed her wits were every bit as sharp as her famous husband's and her temper considerably more even.

Mrs. Khrushchev met with women reporters Friday in the living room of Blair House. She carefully answered every question thrown at her and never once lost the good humor that has characterized her throughout the state visit.

True, there were no barbed queries or hot potatoes tossed. But Mrs. Khrushchev seized on several innocuous questions to drive home some of the differences in Soviet and American customs.

The news conference itself, for instance, was a brand new experience, and she admitted some trepidation at the outset. "We don't have that custom," she said. "We do not believe the habit of reporting in the press things that are mostly of social interest."

Was it a painful experience? "No, but we are not accustomed to it."

She was asked how she spent her time at home, was it mostly housework or charity work? She quickly replied:

"I don't do any charity work. In our country, all that in your country requires charity, collection of funds and so on—the state takes care of all that."

Although she knows some English, she spoke in Russian through an interpreter. The entire tone of the meeting was pleasant. She produced some nice-sounding generalities about American - Soviet relations, and she cleared up some of the personal history of the Khrushchev family.

She first met Khrushchev at Stalino in the early 20's, she said, while she was teaching an adult education class and he was studying mining and engineering. They were married in 1924.

She said Khrushchev's first wife died in a famine. There were two children by that first marriage, Julia, and a son, Leonid, a pilot killed in combat in World War II.

She is the mother of the other three Khrushchev children, Rada, 29, Sergei, 24, and Yelena, 21, a Moscow University student who did not come along on the trip.

Mentor Man Surrenders

Rapist Gives Up Meekly Second Time In 6 Months

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—For the second time in six months, James L. Spring, 24, of Mentor, a plasterer who stands 6 feet 5 and weighs more than 250, has surrendered meekly to be prosecuted for rape of a housewife.

Last April 9 he walked into the Lake County jail and said he raped a 22-year-old Willoughby Hills housewife an hour earlier. Indicted, he was freed on $2,500 bond.

During the evening rush hour Friday, Spring walked into radio station KYW in downtown Cleveland and announced:

"I hear you're looking for the man who raped that woman. I'm that man."

The woman, 35-year-old mother of three, lies seriously injured in Geauga Community Hospital.

She told Sheriff Louis A. Robusky that Spring beat her head on the tile floor of her home, raped her and left her for dead Friday morning.

When she regained consciousness, she crawled through a window of her home in Russell Twp. and stumbled to a neighbor's. She was near hysterics, and her clothes were bloody and torn.

Chief Deputy David Yates found Spring's car in the driveway and it was assumed mistakenly he had fled on foot. A posse that grew to nearly 100 and was assisted by four airplanes and bloodhounds hunted through thick woods around Chagrin Mills Road.

During this time Spring was driving the victim's car around the Cleveland area. On the car's radio he heard a newscast about the rape. He parked back of Cleveland Public Library, walked to KYW and asked for disc jockey Joe Finan. He told Finan his "conscience bothered him."

Later Sheriff Robusky questioned him at Central Police Station and quoted Spring as saying:

"I feel lousy and I'm glad I turned myself in."

The sheriff said Spring related that he had "blacked out" after entering the victim's house.

"But I must have done it," the sheriff quoted Spring as adding.

The beaten woman, wife of an attorney, said Spring had been to her home before to ask for a drink of water while he was working on the construction of a new house nearby. Friday he asked to use the telephone, she said.

"We walked to the kitchen, where the phone is, and he cut the wires with scissors."

Then he threw her to the tile floor of the hallway, "choked me and beat my head on the floor," she told Yates.

After that she was dragged into the bedroom, raped and beaten again before the man left, she continued.

Spring's father, Thomas L. Spring of Mentor, told newsmen Friday night that his son had "spells and mental blackouts" since he fell two stories from an outdoor stairway and landed on his head on a sidewalk when he was two years old.

The elder Spring said he last saw his son Thursday morning.

"He was biting his lower lip," the father said. "That's always a sign that a spell is coming on."

Boy Cyclist Killed

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Danny Erwin Sutton, 13, of Rt. 1, Whitehouse, was killed Friday night when an automobile hit his bicycle on the Waterville - Neapolis Road about 14 miles southwest of here. Police said the bicycle, struck from behind, had no lights.

Car Kills Man, 70

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 70-year-old man was killed Friday night when hit by a car as he walked across Madison Avenue N. W. at Berea Road. Police said the victim, Charles Johnson, of Cleveland, was in a crosswalk and had the light. The driver was held for questioning.

Pennsy, NYC To Cut Off 3 More Trains

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Three more trains will be removed from service by the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, bringing to six the number of trains the roads have cut off in two days.

The PRR told the Utilities Commission it can save $113,883 annually by removing trains No. 353 and 354 which operate between Alliance and Cleveland. The cut would be effective Oct. 25.

The railroad said trains No. 38 and 39 can continue to serve commuters. It added that it is arranging with A & M Transit Lines of Alliance for transportation to these trains.

Ravenna and Alliance area residents have been protesting the stoppage.

The New York Central said it is discontinuing train No. 321 between Cleveland and Cincinnati on Oct. 25. The NYC said it loses $125,000 a year on its operation. It also notified the commission it wants to discontinue stopping train No. 315 at Crestline because there are only two passengers picked up there and no mail deliveries.

In cases like these, the lines need only notify the commission of intention since there is additional train service available. Hearings may be slated, however, if enough complaints are received.

Body Found In Lake

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)—The body of Miles F. Horn, 60, of Columbus, was found near here Thursday night, floating face down in Litter's Lake. Two companions of Horn, a tax consultant for a food store chain, found the body. The case is under investigation by the Ross County coroner.

Highway To Open

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—Relocated, four-lane Ohio 82 from Ohio 90 eastward to Ohio 7 will open to traffic Oct. 1, Highway Director Everett Preston said on a visit here Friday. Another section, eastward from Ohio 7 to U.S. 62 near the Pennsylvania line will open Oct. 15.

Pennsylvania Brothers Killed In Road Mishap

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Two young Pennsylvania brothers, one in the Army and one in the Air Force, perished early today when their automobile smashed into a tractor-trailer on U.S. 22 about six miles west of here.

John W. Herbst, 18, and Michael Herbst, 24, both of St. Marys, Pa., were the victims. The Ohio Highway Patrol said they were eastbound, with John driving, when they evidently went left of center and collided with the truck, westbound.

The truck driver, Darcie Newman, 52, of Rt. 1, Goshen, Ohio, suffered facial lacerations and was admitted to Good Samaritan Hospital here.

John Herbst was stationed with the Army at Ft. Knox, Ky., and his brother at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., the Patrol said. Their car was demolished.

Ohio Bell's New Rogers Exchange Has Open House

ROGERS — Public open house began this afternoon at the new Rogers exchange building of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., with indications a large number of district residents would inspect the modern facility.

The open house will end at 8 tonight and officials of the utility will explain the operations of the new equipment in the $125,000 structure.

Also expected to attract attention was the Ohio Bell Telemobile of Cleveland with displays on worldwide communications equipment.

A preview look at the plant was given a number of Rogers area and township officials and members of the press and radio Friday night after a dinner at Heck's Restaurant as guests of Ohio Bell officials.

The exchange, which serves about 400 subscribers, is a branch of the Salem exchange. It serves Rogers and parts of Elkrun, Fairfield, Madison, Middleton, St. Clair and Unity Townships.

Her Temper More Even

Mrs. K At News Parley As Sharp As Famous Mr. K

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nina Khrushchev, in her first formal news conference, showed her wits were every bit as sharp as her famous husband's and her temper considerably more even.

Mrs. Khrushchev met with women reporters Friday in the living room of Blair House. She carefully answered every question thrown at her and never once lost the good humor that has characterized her throughout the state visit.

True, there were no barbed queries or hot potatoes tossed. But Mrs. Khrushchev seized on several innocuous questions to drive home some of the differences in Soviet and American customs.

The news conference itself, for instance, was a brand new experience, and she admitted some trepidation at the outset. "We don't have that custom," she said. "We do not believe the habit of reporting in the press things that are mostly of social interest."

Was it a painful experience? "No, but we are not accustomed to it."

She was asked how she spent her time at home, was it mostly housework or charity work? She quickly replied:

"I don't do any charity work. In our country, all that in your country requires charity, collection of funds and so on—the state takes care of all that."

Although she knows some English, she spoke in Russian through an interpreter. The entire tone of the meeting was pleasant. She produced some nice-sounding generalities about American - Soviet relations, and she cleared up some of the personal history of the Khrushchev family.

She first met Khrushchev at Stalino in the early 20's, she said, while she was teaching an adult education class and he was studying mining and engineering. They were married in 1924.

She said Khrushchev's first wife died in a famine. There were two children by that first marriage, Julia, and a son, Leonid, a pilot killed in combat in World War II.

She is the mother of the other three Khrushchev children, Rada, 29, Sergei, 24, and Yelena, 21, a Moscow University student who did not come along on the trip.

Mentor Man Surrenders

Rapist Gives Up Meekly Second Time In 6 Months

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—For the second time in six months, James L. Spring, 24, of Mentor, a plasterer who stands 6 feet 5 and weighs more than 250, has surrendered meekly to be prosecuted for rape of a housewife.

Last April 9 he walked into the Lake County jail and said he raped a 22-year-old Willoughby Hills housewife an hour earlier. Indicted, he was freed on $2,500 bond.

During the evening rush hour Friday, Spring walked into radio station KYW in downtown Cleveland and announced:

"I hear you're looking for the man who raped that woman. I'm that man."

The woman, 35-year-old mother of three, lies seriously injured in Geauga Community Hospital.

She told Sheriff Louis A. Robusky that Spring beat her head on the tile floor of her home, raped her and left her for dead Friday morning.

When she regained consciousness, she crawled through a window of her home in Russell Twp. and stumbled to a neighbor's. She was near hysterics, and her clothes were bloody and torn.

Chief Deputy David Yates found Spring's car in the driveway and it was assumed mistakenly he had fled on foot. A posse that grew to nearly 100 and was assisted by four airplanes and bloodhounds hunted through thick woods around Chagrin Mills Road.

During this time Spring was driving the victim's car around the Cleveland area. On the car's radio he heard a newscast about the rape. He parked back of Cleveland Public Library, walked to KYW and asked for disc jockey Joe Finan. He told Finan his "conscience bothered him."

Later Sheriff Robusky questioned him at Central Police Station and quoted Spring as saying:

"I feel lousy and I'm glad I turned myself in."

The sheriff said Spring related that he had "blacked out" after entering the victim's house.

"But I must have done it," the sheriff quoted Spring as adding.

The beaten woman, wife of an attorney, said Spring had been to her home before to ask for a drink of water while he was working on the construction of a new house nearby. Friday he asked to use the telephone, she said.

"We walked to the kitchen, where the phone is, and he cut the wires with scissors."

Then he threw her to the tile floor of the hallway, "choked me and beat my head on the floor," she told Yates.

After that she was dragged into the bedroom, raped and beaten again before the man left, she continued.

Spring's father, Thomas L. Spring of Mentor, told newsmen Friday night that his son had "spells and mental blackouts" since he fell two stories from an outdoor stairway and landed on his head on a sidewalk when he was two years old.

The elder Spring said he last saw his son Thursday morning.

"He was biting his lower lip," the father said. "That's always a sign that a spell is coming on."

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Danny Erwin Sutton, 13, of Rt. 1, Whitehouse, was killed Friday night when an automobile hit his bicycle on the Waterville - Neapolis Road about 14 miles southwest of here. Police said the bicycle, struck from behind, had no lights.

Car Kills Man, 70

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 70-year-old man was killed Friday night when hit by a car as he walked across Madison Avenue N. W. at Berea Road. Police said the victim, Charles Johnson, of Cleveland, was in a crosswalk and had the light. The driver was held for questioning.

Pennsy, NYC To Cut Off 3 More Trains

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Three more trains will be removed from service by the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, bringing to six the number of trains the roads have cut off in two days.

The PRR told the Utilities Commission it can save $113,883 annually by removing trains No. 353 and 354 which operate between Alliance and Cleveland. The cut would be effective Oct. 25.

The railroad said trains No. 38 and 39 can continue to serve commuters. It added that it is arranging with A & M Transit Lines of Alliance for transportation to these trains.

Ravenna and Alliance area residents have been protesting the stoppage.

The New York Central said it is discontinuing train No. 321 between Cleveland and Cincinnati on Oct. 25. The NYC said it loses $125,000 a year on its operation. It also notified the commission it wants to discontinue stopping train No. 315 at Crestline because there are only two passengers picked up there and no mail deliveries.

In cases like these, the lines need only notify the commission of intention since there is additional train service available. Hearings may be slated, however, if enough complaints are received.

Pennsylvania Brothers Killed In Road Mishap

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Two young Pennsylvania brothers, one in the Army and one in the Air Force, perished early today when their automobile smashed into a tractor-trailer on U.S. 22 about six miles west of here.

John W. Herbst, 18, and Michael Herbst, 24, both of St. Marys, Pa., were the victims. The Ohio Highway Patrol said they were eastbound, with John driving, when they evidently went left of center and collided with the truck, westbound.

The truck driver, Darcie Newman, 52, of Rt. 1, Goshen, Ohio, suffered facial lacerations and was admitted to Good Samaritan Hospital here.

Merger Program Set

Church At Wellsville Will Close Oct. 11

A special service will be held Sunday, Oct. 11, at the Wellsville United Presbyterian Church to mark the closing of the church and the merger with the Wellsville First Presbyterian Church.

A Communion service will be conducted and a special speaker will be obtained. Invitations will be mailed former members and pastors and members who have moved out of town.

AFTER THE merger is formally completed, the congregation will join in the First church and the new church will be known as the Riverside United Presbyterian Church.

THE FIRST "meeting house" was erected in 1849 and is described as having no carpet, no pulpit, no plaster, no paint, no pews. The roof was the ceiling and unplaned boards placed upon carpenters benches were the pews. It was heated by two stoves and lighted by lamps placed upon four posts.

RECORDS show the Rev. William Lorimer, in 1846, obtained use of the Methodist Episcopal, now known as the First Methodist Church, for a worship service for adherents to the Associated Reformed Faith.

A COMMUNION service was held Aug. 17, 1847, in the Methodist Protestant Church, now known as the Central Methodist Church, with 14 participating.

When the congregation was organized the following April, four more joined and they constituted the congregation. Use of the church for "one-half time" was secured at the rate of $1 per Sunday.

The first regular pastor was the Rev. J. C. Campbell, 1848-1859. He divided his time between the Wellsville and the Knoxville churches.

The Rev. Joseph Andrews was pastor from 1859 until his death, June 16, 1869. His salary was $600 per year.

FROM 1870 to 1875, the Rev. J. D. Browlee served as pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. J. D. Bailey, 1877-1882. Other pastors were the Rev. J. D. Kennedy, 1884-1895; the Rev. W. A. Lettell 1895-1899; the Rev. W. M. Glasgow 1899-1904; the Rev. F. D. Finley, 1905-1908; the Rev. J. W. Giffin, 1909-1912; the Rev. W. C. Work, 1912-1913; the Rev. John C. Smith, 1913-1917; the Rev. R. W. Ustick, 1918-1928.

The Rev. William C. Latta served in 1928-1931; The Rev. Jay W. Ranson, 1932-1937; Walter L. Ralston, May-August, 1937; The Rev. C. F. Kenneweg, 1937-1939; The Rev. John A. Rankin, 1940-1944, when he died, and The Rev. Charles Smith Jr. 1945-1953.

Rev. Latta was installed as the regular pastor and since then all the others serving the congregation were stated supplies with the exception of Walter L. Ralston and Sarkis M. Kassouni and other students from the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological seminary.

THE FIRST Women's Missionary Society was organized at the home of Dr. McCarrell Dec. 11, 1877.

The congregation observed its 100th anniversary May 26-30.

The joint seesions will decide disposition of the old building, probably early next year.

Merger Program Set

Church At Wellsville Will Close Oct. 11

A special service will be held Sunday, Oct. 11, at the Wellsville United Presbyterian Church to mark the closing of the church and the merger with the Wellsville First Presbyterian Church.

A Communion service will be conducted and a special speaker will be obtained. Invitations will be mailed former members and pastors and members who have moved out of town.

AFTER THE merger is formally completed, the congregation will join in the First church and the new church will be known as the Riverside United Presbyterian Church.

The history of the United Presbyterian Church dates to 1846, although the congregation was not formally organized until April 1, 1848.

THE FIRST "meeting house" was erected in 1849 and is described as having no carpet, no pulpit, no plaster, no paint, no pews. The roof was the ceiling and unplaned boards placed upon carpenters benches were the pews. It was heated by two stoves and lighted by lamps placed upon four posts.

RECORDS show the Rev. William Lorimer, in 1846, obtained use of the Methodist Episcopal, now known as the First Methodist Church, for a worship service for adherents to the Associated Reformed Faith.

A COMMUNION service was held Aug. 17, 1847, in the Methodist Protestant Church, now known as the Central Methodist Church, with 14 participating.

When the congregation was organized the following April, four more joined and they constituted the congregation. Use of the church for "one-half time" was secured at the rate of $1 per Sunday.

The first regular pastor was the Rev. J. C. Campbell, 1848-1859. He divided his time between the Wellsville and the Knoxville churches.

The Rev. Joseph Andrews was pastor from 1859 until his death, June 16, 1869. His salary was $600 per year.

FROM 1870 to 1875, the Rev. J. D. Browlee served as pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. J. D. Bailey, 1877-1882. Other pastors were the Rev. J. D. Kennedy, 1884-1895; the Rev. W. A. Lettell 1895-1899; the Rev. W. M. Glasgow 1899-1904; the Rev. F. D. Finley, 1905-1908; the Rev. J. W. Giffin, 1909-1912; the Rev. W. C. Work, 1912-1913; the Rev. John C. Smith, 1913-1917; the Rev. R. W. Ustick, 1918-1928.

The Rev. William C. Latta served in 1928-1931; The Rev. Jay W. Ranson, 1932-1937; Walter L. Ralston, May-August, 1937; The Rev. C. F. Kenneweg, 1937-1939; The Rev. John A. Rankin, 1940-1944, when he died, and The Rev. Charles Smith Jr. 1945-1953.

Rev. Latta was installed as the regular pastor and since then all the others serving the congregation were stated supplies with the exception of Walter L. Ralston and Sarkis M. Kassouni and other students from the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological seminary.

THE FIRST Women's Missionary Society was organized at the home of Dr. McCarrell Dec. 11, 1877.

The congregation observed its 100th anniversary May 26-30.

The joint seesions will decide disposition of the old building, probably early next year.

Union Slates New Meeting

Alex Bowie of East Liverpool, United Steelworkers Union representative, said negotiations will resume in Pittsburgh Tuesday between Local 1269 of the Macintosh-Hemphill Division at Midland and the parent firm, the E. W. Bliss Co.

He said meetings Monday and Thursday "were but a farce" and charged the company is "stalling for time" to see what results in negotiations in New York.

His announcement came after workers returned Friday to Bliss' Canton plant and a company announcement that union locals of the two Mackintosh - Hemphill plants, at Midland and Pittsburgh, had turned down the same extension agreement offered the Canton local.

Bowie said the company did offer an extension but would not agree to give the Pennsylvania workers a co-operative wage system and paid insurance as in the two Ohio plants at Canton and Salem.

He said Pennsylvania workers are lower paid in some job classes and the union Monday asked a 12-cent increase and a co-operative wage system. He said the union agreed to accept 6 cents the first year and 6 cents the next. The company refused, he said.

At Thursday's meeting, the union offered to put the plants back to work next Monday if the company would agree to have the two issues of co-operative wage system and paid insurance left to an impartial arbitrator but the company refused, Bowie said.

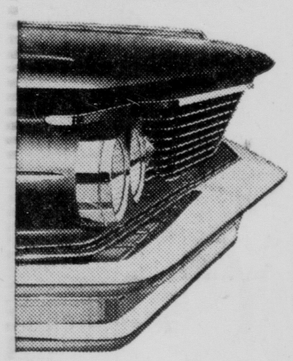

He said practically all of the non-economic sections of a contract have been negotiated by the company and union.

Before Tuesday's meeting, Bowie said he intends first to confer with Kay Kluz, acting union District 20 director, at Ambridge.

George VanKirk, president of 1269, announced a regular membership meeting will be Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Midland Union Hall. All members are expected to attend, he said.

A Visit To Storied Israel

It was on a beautiful warm morning when, with great anticipation, we passed through the heavily-guarded Mandelbaum Gate into bustling and busy Israel. Along well - paved highways filled with traffic, we sped through beautifully cultivated countryside to the amazing city of Tel - Aviv. Less than 50 years old, the Israeli capital now boasts over half a million people. Its shop - lined streets are thronged and on all sides are evidences of creative enterprise. It is a Western city in an Eastern setting. You could easily imagine yourself in Europe or America as you force your way through the crowds.

Dr. Peale

AND IT IS truly a melting pot, for to Israel have come Jews from all over the world. Here nearly two million from many countries make their home. I met Jewish people from China, Japan, Germany, Brazil, the United States—everywhere — who have come to dwell in the homeland of the Jews.

We lunched that day at the American Embassy with Ambassador Ogden Reid and his family. Our country is well represented by this capable and dedicated young diplomat.

In his work, the ambassador is efficiently assisted by his whole family. He had suggested to his young sons that they try to learn Hebrew from the neighbor boys. Although they had been there only a short time, they had picked up quite a few words.

And the Reid boys had done an even better job teaching American to the neighborhood kids. They also had introduced baseball and a street version of the American game was in progress in front of the ambassador's residence. One of the young Reids put a fast one over the plate to the delight of the local youngsters. The good neighbor policy was going strong.

After lunch we headed the car toward Galilee. It seemed scarcely possible that at last we were actually to see those storied places where Jesus Christ walked and taught in the long ago.

IT WAS glorious countryside through which we passed on the three-hour motor trip. Every mile was steeped in the history out of which Judeao-Christian civilization developed.

The road wound through the beautiful valley of Esdraelon surrounded by Gilboa, Moriah and Carmel mountains. In those hills of Gilboa, David and Goliath battled, and there the famed Israelite-Philistine wars were fought.

Then through the famed Armageddon Valley of the Book of Revelations — that fateful vale where prophecy tells us the last great battle between good and evil will be fought. Mount Tabor rose straight out of the Plain to dominate mile after mile of the route. Some authorities say this was the Mount of Transfiguration of the New Testament.

Then we passed into the Jordan Valley and finally, like a blue gem amidst the brown hills, there lay the famed Sea of Galilee. Down into Tiberias we went over a spiraling road, for it lies six hundred feet below sea level.

As twilight fell the Syrian hills across the lake turned golden, then pink, then blue; and finally a full moon rose red, then turned to silver. Sitting on the terrace of our hotel we could listen to the water softly lapping the shore as it had for centuries. The words of an old hymn came to mind:

"Oh Sabbath rest by Galilee!
Oh calm of hills above!
Where Jesus knelt to share with Thee
The silence of eternity,
Interpreted by love."

THE NEXT day will ever live in memory. The New Testament unfolded before our eyes and came alive as our guide, Reuben Ben Dori, a kindly and sturdy man took us to Magdala, Capernaum, Cana of Galilee, Bethsaida, and Nazareth — place names we had known all our lives. He showed us the hill of Beatitudes from which the Sermon of the Mount was preached and the place where the five thousand were fed.

We saw the rock which Jesus compared to Peter — the strong personality upon which He would built His church. We saw where the disciples let down their nets for the draught of fishes, and where they made fishers of men.

There along the shore were little fishing boats and nets drying, just the same, no doubt, as when the disciples fished. And at the evening meal we dined on "Peter's fish" straight from the Sea of Galilee.

Meditating there by the seashore, I thought of that storm when Jesus calmed the sea, or more importantly, when he quited the fear-filled minds of His disciples. His clear voice rang out over the raging waters saying, "Peace, be still." And the New Testament dramatically says, "And there was a great calm."

I actually seemed to feel that calmness, for there was a strong and serene tranquillity in that holy spot. Of course, one does not need to journey to far away Galilee to find peace.

Wherever you are, if you will simply pray and believe and listen you will hear Him speaking peace to your own storm-filled mind. What peace and rest in those mellifluous words, "Peace, be still."

City Approves Bid Of $1 To Raze Building

Mayor Fred P. Lawrence and Safety - Service Director Joseph F. Ross Friday awarded a $1 contract to the M. & S. Wrecking Co. of Youngstown to raze a brick and frame building opposite City Hall on W. 6th St. to clear the site for metered off - street parking.

The Youngstown concern's offer was the lowest of six received Wednesday by the two officials, who comprise the Board of Control. The date on which work will start and the time allowed for completion will be specified when the city and the wrecker draw up the formal contract, the director said. The M. & S. bid also specified that the contractor will be allowed to retain all salvageable material.

Five other concerns submitted offers ranging from $445 to $1,325.

The building to be razed formerly housed the Bennett Grocery and the Instant Lunch. The section occupied by the grocery was damaged heavily in a fire in 1958 and the store never was reopened.

The city acquired the structure for $17,000 about 2 months ago from Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rapport of Thompson Ave. About $3,000 more will be spent to blacktop the site and install parking meters. The purchase is expected to be self - liquidating through revenue from the meters.

It's the first move in a long-range plan under which other property will be acquired around the perimeter of the business district to provide convenient off - street parking for shoppers.

Hancock's Petit Jurors To Report

Hancock County petit jurors will report Thursday morning at 10 in New Cumberland instead of Monday, the county sheriff's office reported today.

Jurors will hear a $15,000 civil suit filed by Ann Malinowski against Kenneth D. Little. The case was thrown out of court once before, deputies said.

The civil suit scheduled Monday, filed by Associate Discount Corp. against Donald B. Mullin for $646.90, was settled out of court, authorities said.

Meanwhile, Ronald Howell of Chester was sentenced Friday by Judge J. Harold Brennan to 1-5 years in the Moundsville State Penitentiary for "aiding and abetting" in the escape of two prisoners from county jail two weeks ago.

Howell had entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned last week but later changed his plea to guilty.

Duane Mercer, 23, of New Cumberland and Donald C. Beck of Weirton, also faces charges of conspiring in the jail escape.

They are expected to be sentenced sometime next week, sheriff's dputies indicated.

Bust Exercises Aid New Mothers

How to restore tone to the bust supporting muscles is one question frequently asked by new mothers. They want to know how soon exercise can be started and what type of exercise is most effective.

Ida Jean Kain

The obstetrician with whom I discussed this problem advised that the fifth day after the baby arrives is not too soon to begin exercise to restore tone to the pectoral muscles. Both the nursing and the non-nursing mothers can safely start exercise at this time.

The doctor pointed out that some specialists do not suggest exercises until the six week check-up. However, in his opinion, by then the new mother has lost the most opportune time to restore tone.

REGENERATION of tissue is an individual matter, not specifically controllable. This is also true of glandular development. Therefore, muscular development of the pectorals is about the only measure that can be taken to improve the bust contour.

It is particularly important that a good supportive brassiere be worn both during and after the pregnancy period. The doctor cautioned, too, against excessive weight gain. The tissues of the breast are particularly susceptible to fatty infiltration.

Here is a trio of easy exercises to restore normal tone . . . take them daily.

Raise arms to chest level, elbows bent, and fingertips touching in front of chest. With a sudden thrust movement, push fingertips together — relax and repeat the thrust movement for a dozen counts or so.

THE TECHNIQUE is to force the muscle under the right hand to take the action as you slowly move left arm toward center. Keep the arm straight, relaxed completely and at shoulder level. Repeat with other arm and again make sure the pectoral muscle does the work.

A "natural" exercise for tightening the bust - supporting muscles is to push a child in a swing . . . that exercise movement is right in the groove for toning arm and pectoral muscles.

Then through the famed Armageddon Valley of the Book of Revelations — that fateful vale where prophecy tells us the last great battle between good and evil will be fought. Mount Tabor rose straight out of the Plain to dominate mile after mile of the route. Some authorities say this was the Mount of Transfiguration of the New Testament.

Then we passed into the Jordan Valley and finally, like a blue gem amidst the brown hills, there lay the famed Sea of Galilee. Down into Tiberias we went over a spiraling road, for it lies six hundred feet below sea level.

As twilight fell the Syrian hills across the lake turned golden, then pink, then blue; and finally a full moon rose red, then turned to silver. Sitting on the terrace of our hotel we could listen to the water softly lapping the shore as it had for centuries. The words of an old hymn came to mind:

"Oh Sabbath rest by Galilee!
Oh calm of hills above!
Where Jesus knelt to share with Thee
The silence of eternity,

THE NEXT day will ever live in memory. The New Testament unfolded before our eyes and came alive as our guide, Reuben Ben Dori, a kindly and sturdy man took us to Magdala, Capernaum, Cana of Galilee, Bethsaida, and Nazareth — place names we had known all our lives. He showed us the hill of Beatitudes from which the Sermon of the Mount was preached and the place where the five thousand were fed.

We saw the rock which Jesus compared to Peter — the strong personality upon which He would built His church. We saw where the disciples let down their nets for the draught of fishes, and where they made fishers of men.

There along the shore were little fishing boats and nets drying, just the same, no doubt, as when the disciples fished. And at the evening meal we dined on "Peter's fish" straight from the Sea of Galilee.

Meditating there by the seashore, I thought of that storm when Jesus calmed the sea, or more importantly, when he quited the fear-filled minds of His disciples. His clear voice rang out over the raging waters saying, "Peace, be still." And the New Testament dramatically says, "And there was a great calm."

I actually seemed to feel that calmness, for there was a strong and serene tranquillity in that holy spot. Of course, one does not need to journey to far away Galilee to find peace.

Wherever you are, if you will simply pray and believe and listen you will hear Him speaking peace to your own storm-filled mind. What peace and rest in those mellifluous words, "Peace, be still."

City Approves Bid Of $1 To Raze Building

Mayor Fred P. Lawrence and Safety - Service Director Joseph F. Ross Friday awarded a $1 contract to the M. & S. Wrecking Co. of Youngstown to raze a brick and frame building opposite City Hall on W. 6th St. to clear the site for metered off - street parking.

The Youngstown concern's offer was the lowest of six received Wednesday by the two officials, who comprise the Board of Control. The date on which work will start and the time allowed for completion will be specified when the city and the wrecker draw up the formal contract, the director said. The M. & S. bid also specified that the contractor will be allowed to retain all salvageable material.

Five other concerns submitted offers ranging from $445 to $1,325.

The building to be razed formerly housed the Bennett Grocery and the Instant Lunch. The section occupied by the grocery was damaged heavily in a fire in 1958 and the store never was reopened.

The city acquired the structure for $17,000 about 2 months ago from Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rapport of Thompson Ave. About $3,000 more will be spent to blacktop the site and install parking meters. The purchase is expected to be self - liquidating through revenue from the meters.

It's the first move in a long-range plan under which other property will be acquired around the perimeter of the business district to provide convenient off - street parking for shoppers.

Hancock's Petit Jurors To Report

Hancock County petit jurors will report Thursday morning at 10 in New Cumberland instead of Monday, the county sheriff's office reported today.

Jurors will hear a $15,000 civil suit filed by Ann Malinowski against Kenneth D. Little. The case was thrown out of court once before, deputies said.

The civil suit scheduled Monday, filed by Associate Discount Corp. against Donald B. Mullin for $646.90, was settled out of court, authorities said.

Meanwhile, Ronald Howell of Chester was sentenced Friday by Judge J. Harold Brennan to 1-5 years in the Moundsville State Penitentiary for "aiding and abetting" in the escape of two prisoners from county jail two weeks ago.

Howell had entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned last week but later changed his plea to guilty.

Duane Mercer, 23, of New Cumberland and Donald C. Beck of Weirton, also faces charges of conspiring in the jail escape.

They are expected to be sentenced sometime next week, sheriff's dputies indicated.

Bust Exercises Aid New Mothers

How to restore tone to the bust supporting muscles is one question frequently asked by new mothers. They want to know how soon exercise can be started and what type of exercise is most effective.

Ida Jean Kain

The obstetrician with whom I discussed this problem advised that the fifth day after the baby arrives is not too soon to begin exercise to restore tone to the pectoral muscles. Both the nursing and the non-nursing mothers can safely start exercise at this time.

The doctor pointed out that some specialists do not suggest exercises until the six week check-up. However, in his opinion, by then the new mother has lost the most opportune time to restore tone.

REGENERATION of tissue is an individual matter, not specifically controllable. This is also true of glandular development. Therefore, muscular development of the pectorals is about the only measure that can be taken to improve the bust contour.

It is particularly important that a good supportive brassiere be worn both during and after the pregnancy period. The doctor cautioned, too, against excessive weight gain. The tissues of the breast are particularly susceptible to fatty infiltration.

Here is a trio of easy exercises to restore normal tone . . . take them daily.

Raise arms to chest level, elbows bent, and fingertips touching in front of chest. With a sudden thrust movement, push fingertips together — relax and repeat the thrust movement for a dozen counts or so.

THE TECHNIQUE is to force the muscle under the right hand to take the action as you slowly move left arm toward center. Keep the arm straight, relaxed completely and at shoulder level. Repeat with other arm and again make sure the pectoral muscle does the work.

A "natural" exercise for tightening the bust - supporting muscles is to push a child in a swing . . . that exercise movement is right in the groove for toning arm and pectoral muscles.

ARE WE LETTING POLIO CREEP BACK?

Yes, says a noted medical authority, and the blame rests on those who put off getting Salk shots until it is too late

by W. W. Bauer, M.D.

Director of Health Education, American Medical Association

WITH INCREASING uneasiness, these questions are being asked across the nation: "Is polio creeping back? What has the Salk vaccine accomplished? What about the Sabin oral vaccine? What do we do now—about our children and ourselves?"

The answers are not reassuring. Polio is creeping back. Over-all figures for the United States show an increase over 1958. There has been a state-wide epidemic in Iowa. Detroit has suffered an increase in paralytic polio.

The public's increasing concern, however, is a late manifestation. Physicians and public-health officials have been disturbed by the polio situation for more than a year. Because polio is not creeping back as a result of some mysterious failure in the vaccine. It is creeping back as infectious diseases have always crept back—because we relaxed our vigilance! We simply are not being vaccinated with the Salk vaccine. Why not?

Is it fear of the safety of the vaccine? Probably not. Early fears have largely evaporated. People know that, by and large, current procedures are safe.

Is it indifference to the dangers in polio? Indications are that people dread it as much as ever.

Is it cost? Some claim this is a reason, but there is no basis for it. People unable to afford vaccination by private physicians can get the vaccine at health departments, either gratis or for a pittance. Anyway, many of those who rebel against the costs of vaccination prove quite able to spend larger sums on nonessential personal indulgences.

What, then, remains? Why was it necessary early in 1958 to destroy millions of doses of vaccine outdated because of non-use?

The simple answer is procrastination.

I know dozens of people who are going to be vaccinated against polio "as soon as . . ." I keep hoping that paralytic polio will not strike them sooner. But I wonder. I have only just managed to bulldoze my older son, who has been brought up in a doctor's family and a health official's family at that, to start getting his shots.

Popular apathy cannot be charged to lack of endeavor by the medical profession or public-health authorities. State and local health departments, as well as the U. S. Public Health Service, have continuously urged immunization. The American Medical Association launched a major campaign in January, 1958, supplying doctors with cards urging patients to get their vaccinations started, and others reminding them of the third shot, where necessary. Special fee concessions have been made in many places. Still, many people remain unvaccinated.

And so—polio creeps back.

All this despite the fact that at long last we have a way to curb it! Figures from many sources show that the increase in paralytic polio which is now causing concern has occurred primarily among those who have not had the Salk vaccine. A smaller number has occurred in those who have had less than three shots. In those who have had three, cases are rare.

Since the vaccine is relatively new, there has not been opportunity to estimate the duration of immunity by lapse of time alone. However, laboratory measurements of blood antibodies indicate a slow but steady decrease, as with other kinds of immunity. For this reason, Doctor Salk and others now recommend a fourth "booster" shot about a year after the third. Further experience may indicate a need for additional boosters at times when epidemics threaten.

It is characteristic of research scientists that they are not satisfied with something good if there is a chance of something better. So they continue their research to improve the injectable vaccine and to find other approaches.

ONE OF THE PROSPECTS is the oral vaccine, commonly credited to the research of Dr. Albert B. Sabin of Cincinnati. This is taken in a tablet or a piece of candy and obviously has greater appeal than the use of the needle. It has been tested with apparently good results in small groups in the United States and larger numbers in other parts of the world. Unlike the Salk vaccine, it is a live vaccine; this necessitates positive assurance that its administration will not give rise to secondary cases of polio in nonimmune individuals. Tests so far indicate that this criterion will be met, but the Public Health Service has not yet released the vaccine.

In the meantime, the possibility of the Sabin vaccine being available in the future should not keep people from using the Salk vaccine now. This is the unanimous opinion and advice of all medical authorities and public-health agencies at every level.

Yes, polio is creeping back—polio will creep back—unless you do the one thing that remains to be done. Be vaccinated—now.

8 AGAINST DEATH IN THE DESERT

How could they survive in that blazing inferno where "the sun and heat are so terrific you don't find a living thing—not a snake, not a rat, not a toad"?

by Evan Wylie

They hacked a hole in the shale to bury Leland up to his neck. Laura Scott was dimly aware she probably was digging a grave for her family.

"WE'LL BE BACK for lunch," Laura Scott had called to her sister Barbara Prescott as the Ford, overflowing with children, pulled out of the Prescott driveway in Moab, Utah, that summer morning.

Down from Salt Lake City for a week-end visit with the Prescotts were Virl Scott, a husky, handsome man in his middle 30s, Laura, his slight, blonde wife and their six children, three older girls and three younger boys, ranging in age from four years to 12. Right after breakfast they had set out for Dead Horse Point, a lofty bluff which affords a breath-taking panorama of the steep gorges and canyons of the Colorado River.

By 11 a.m. the Scotts had admired the view, taken snapshots of the children perched on the Point's rocks and started back toward Moab. All about were scores of little roads made by the jeeps and trucks of uranium and oil prospectors during the prospecting boom which centered around Moab in the early 1950s. They appeared freshly traveled. Spotting one marked "To the Neck" the Scotts, eager for more spectacular canyon scenery, followed it.

Although the road descended into the canyon, they felt perfectly safe. No signs warned the unwary tourist that it might be dangerous. At any moment they expected to come upon a sign pointing to the main highway.

Actually the Scott family was on a road to nowhere. The Schafer Trail, on which they were descending into the canyon, leads only deeper into as wild, desolate and treacherous a region as exists in all of the United States. For thousands of square miles over southern Utah and into Arizona there is nothing but an unbelievable chaos of deep canyons, lonely giant rock towers, dry basins, crumbling plateaus and naked burning desert. Here man's enemy is not wild beasts but the sun. Blazing with a terrible ferocity, it sends temperatures soaring to above 125 degrees. In its searing heat human tissue dehydrates and shrivels in a matter of hours.

In a short time the Scotts had dropped more than 2,000 feet to the bottom of the canyon and were far south of Dead Horse Point. Abruptly, a sharp metallic clash rang out. Leaping out, Virl Scott saw the car's radiator, bent backward by a rock and gashed by the blades of its fan, spurting antifreeze in a dozen miniature fountains. Before he could rip off a hub cap to catch the liquid, it had vanished.

SUDDENLY AWARE of the frightful heat and strange malevolent silence of the canyon, Scott felt the first fear grip him. Concealing his alarm, he said to his wife, "I think there's still some water inside the engine. It's too far to go back. We'll keep on and get out of here as fast as we can."

He had made perhaps five miles when the car suddenly sank to its hubs in deep sand. Scott battled for more than an hour in the blinding sun before he tore the auto free. Dizzy with exhaustion, he hastily reloaded the children and managed another five miles of gulches and gullies. Then, with a teeth-rattling jolt, the car struck another rock, stalled and rolled backward down an incline. Laura Scott clutched her husband's arm and pointed to a trail of heavy black oil. The crankcase was punctured.

So swiftly had events turned against them that the Scotts' plight seemed almost unreal: without oil and water the car now could not be driven more than a few hundred yards; between them and Moab lay some 50 miles of burning desert; no one would know where to look for them.

Steeling himself against the bewilderment in the eyes of his hot, dusty, thirsty children, Virl Scott spoke calmly: "Now Bryan . . . Virlene . . . Laurene . . . everybody listen carefully to what I say. Our car is broken down and we're going to have to stay right here until Aunt Barbara and Uncle Bill send some people to get us. You must be very quiet and brave and do exactly as your mother and I say."

For the rest of the afternoon the Scotts crouched in the meager shade of an overhanging rock, eyeing their car baking in the sun, realizing that whatever it contained might count toward their survival. As soon as a lengthening twilight shadow enveloped it, they ransacked the sedan.

There was not a particle of food, not a drop of water. Nevertheless the Scotts got busy. As a full moon rose over the desert, Laura Scott used wire cutters from the tool box to cut two pink blankets into narrow strips. With them she fashioned the letters "S O S" in the sand. Virl removed the spare tire from its wheel, rolled it out onto the desert, mounted a pair of old galoshes on top to have a signal fire ready. He removed the back seat to use as a sunshield, unscrewed the rear-view mirror and put it in his pocket, removed the hub caps and spread them about to catch the night moisture.

The Scott children, with the obedience and discipline often found in large families, helped or sat quietly watching. Only Leland, just four and too young to understand, had begun to whimper, "Me want a drink . . . me want to go home now."

In Moab, Barbara Prescott had cleared away the Scotts' uneaten lunch, waited all afternoon with growing anxiety. "Bill," she told her husband when he came home from work at 5 p.m., "I'm scared. Something's happened to them."

"Oh, honey, I'm sure they're all right," Prescott replied. "I'll go out and round them up."

For two hours he searched around the deserted lookout. Then he drove back to Moab and called Sheriff John Stock. In a few minutes Stock had flashed an alarm to highway patrols and was on his way to lead a search of tourist scenic attractions near Moab. Says Stock, "Even we natives are afraid of that White Rim canyon country. This time of year the sun and heat are so terrific in there that you don't find a living thing – not a snake, not a rat, not a toad."

By radio telephone from his car he called Glen Haren, operator of the local flying service and member of the Utah Air Police. "We may have some people down in the canyon," he said. "I'd like to fly with you in the morning."

IN THE MOONLIGHT, the steel cool to their burning bodies, the Scott children slept draped over hood, fenders and roof of the car. Virl and Laura Scott made every moment of darkness count. Sighting on the North Star, they marked in their minds every ledge and rock that might provide a few minutes of shade from the sun.

In the desert the day comes with a rush. By 5 a.m. it was daylight. By 7 a.m. the Scotts' battle for survival was begun. As the sun found the car, Laura and her children crept under an overhanging ledge and lay still. Down in the canyon Virl braved the merciless heat and he knelt and flashed the Ford's mirror futilely at high-flying jet bombers. Soaking his road map in a spray of gasoline from their camp stove, he ignited it and tucked the burning paper around the galoshes and spare tire. He was still laboring to get his signal fire going when a small plane appeared. Furiously Scott punished himself in the sun to build up his beacons. He burned the galoshes and the tire's inner tube. The pyre gave off a plume of black smoke, but an errant breeze directed it into a shadow beside a canyon wall. The plane vanished and he waited in vain for others.

To counter the despair that now filled their hearts the Scotts turned to another weapon. Steadfast Mormons, they had molded their lives to the tenets of their religion. In their temple Laura played the organ. Virl was a member of the priesthood.

"Come, everyone," he now said. "Let us have a word of prayer together." Kneeling in the dirt the children and Laura joined in as he prayed to God for the strength and will to survive the day. From then on, whenever he sensed that hysteria was seizing his family, Scott would say, "Come now, children, let us pray together."

Since dawn the search operations in Moab had been pressed with desperate urgency. But as the day wore on distant dry thunder squalls made the desert air so turbulent that rim searching was out of the question. Search parties were restricted to the ground. Over all hung one inescapable fact: if the Scotts were stranded in the desert without water, they would be dead or dying before the sun set the next day.

In the scorching heat of the canyon, the Scotts crouched motionless under their ledge, peering into the sky, straining their ears for the sound of auto or aircraft engine. From her pocketbook Laura took her lipstick and coated the blistered, swollen lips of her husband and children. To their mouths she held spoonfuls of the bitter radiator fluid. On their faces she patted rouge from her compact.

Absently thrusting his fingers into the dirt, Virl started violently: it was cool. Sitting up, he cried, "Laura, children, get down into the dirt. Cover yourselves with it. Rub it on your arms and faces – never mind how dirty you get!"

Digging feverishly with their bare hands, the family scooped, scraped, showered each other with handfuls of dirt as one would with water.

The cat and mouse game with the sun continued. Minute by minute the shade shrank as the sun's rays reached deeper under the ledge. As the children cowered closer together, Virl said, "I'm taking up too much room. I'm getting out."

Raising her head, Laura saw her husband in the scorching sun, scrawling "HELP – WATER" on a huge flat rock. He brought branches ripped from a bush cedar to the children. "Peel the bark and suck the wood," he said "There may be a bit of moisture."

By midday the canyon was an inferno. After a day and one-half without water in the searing heat, the children were dehydrating rapidly. No moisture showed on their bodies. Throats parched, tongues and lips swollen, they lay listlessly still.

VIRL SCOTT and his wife now undertook a measure they had put off as long as possible. Earlier, in matter-of-fact tones, they had announced everyone would urinate only into the empty milk pail. It now was about half full. Dipping her children's shirts and blouses into the pail, Laura bathed their bodies and faces with the fluid, wrung out the garments and replaced them on the children. The desert breeze blowing through the damp clothing cooled their chests and arms. Filthy with dirt, foul-smelling and weirdly theatrical in their lipstick and rouge make-up, they lay under the ledge like animals, numbly enduring the suffocating heat and pitiless glare of the sun.

In mid-afternoon Virl Scott was roused by his children running toward the car. They squirmed into the sand beneath and waved to him to join them. Scott was too weak to move. He had become afraid of the car. With a small amount of gasoline still in its tank and a few drops of water inside the engine block, it teased, "Get in . . . drive me . . . anywhere . . . get the kids out of here!"

The night before Scott had resolved he would not drive no matter what happened. To leave was certain death. "Don't let those kids get away from you," he shouted to his wife. Keep them in the shade. I'll throw stones at anybody who moves!"

His cracked voice had a frenzied quality to it, and Laura Scott realized that her husband, exhausted by his struggles in the desert sun, was sinking into delirium. If there was an atom of

They hacked a hole in the shale to bury Leland up to his neck. Laura Scott was dimly aware she probably was digging a grave for her family.

"WE'LL BE BACK for lunch," Laura Scott had called to her sister Barbara Prescott as the Ford, overflowing with children, pulled out of the Prescott driveway in Moab, Utah, that summer morning.

Down from Salt Lake City for a week-end visit with the Prescotts were Virl Scott, a husky, handsome man in his middle 30s, Laura, his slight, blonde wife and their six children, three older girls and three younger boys, ranging in age from four years to 12. Right after breakfast they had set out for Dead Horse Point, a lofty bluff which affords a breath-taking panorama of the steep gorges and canyons of the Colorado River.

By 11 a.m. the Scotts had admired the view, taken snapshots of the children perched on the Point's rocks and started back toward Moab. All about were scores of little roads made by the jeeps and trucks of uranium and oil prospectors during the prospecting boom which centered around Moab in the early 1950s. They appeared freshly traveled. Spotting one marked "To the Neck" the Scotts, eager for more spectacular canyon scenery, followed it.

Although the road descended into the canyon, they felt perfectly safe. No signs warned the unwary tourist that it might be dangerous. At any moment they expected to come upon a sign pointing to the main highway.

Actually the Scott family was on a road to nowhere. The Schafer Trail, on which they were descending into the canyon, leads only deeper into as wild, desolate and treacherous a region as exists in all of the United States. For thousands of square miles over southern Utah and into Arizona there is nothing but an unbelievable chaos of deep canyons, lonely giant rock towers, dry basins, crumbling plateaus and naked burning desert. Here man's enemy is not wild beasts but the sun. Blazing with a terrible ferocity, it sends temperatures soaring to above 125 degrees. In its searing heat human tissue dehydrates and shrivels in a matter of hours.

In a short time the Scotts had dropped more than 2,000 feet to the bottom of the canyon and were far south of Dead Horse Point. Abruptly, a sharp metallic clash rang out. Leaping out, Virl Scott saw the car's radiator, bent backward by a rock and gashed by the blades of its fan, spurting antifreeze in a dozen miniature fountains. Before he could rip off a hub cap to catch the liquid, it had vanished.

SUDDENLY AWARE of the frightful heat and strange malevolent silence of the canyon, Scott felt the first fear grip him. Concealing his alarm, he said to his wife, "I think there's still some water inside the engine. It's too far to go back. We'll keep on and get out of here as fast as we can."

He had made perhaps five miles when the car suddenly sank to its hubs in deep sand. Scott battled for more than an hour in the blinding sun before he tore the auto free. Dizzy with exhaustion, he hastily reloaded the children and managed another five miles of gulches and gullies. Then, with a teeth-rattling jolt, the car struck another rock, stalled and rolled backward down an incline. Laura Scott clutched her husband's arm and pointed to a trail of heavy black oil. The crankcase was punctured.

So swiftly had events turned against them that the Scotts' plight seemed almost unreal: without oil and water the car now could not be driven more than a few hundred yards; between them and Moab lay some 50 miles of burning desert; no one would know where to look for them.

Steeling himself against the bewilderment in the eyes of his hot, dusty, thirsty children, Virl Scott spoke calmly: "Now Bryan . . . Virlene . . . Laurene . . . everybody listen carefully to what I say. Our car is broken down and we're going to have to stay right here until Aunt Barbara and Uncle Bill send some people to get us. You must be very quiet and brave and do exactly as your mother and I say."

For the rest of the afternoon the Scotts crouched in the meager shade of an overhanging rock, eyeing their car baking in the sun, realizing that whatever it contained might count toward their survival. As soon as a lengthening twilight shadow enveloped it, they ransacked the sedan.

There was not a particle of food, not a drop of water. Nevertheless the Scotts got busy. As a full moon rose over the desert, Laura Scott used wire cutters from the tool box to cut two pink blankets into narrow strips. With them she fashioned the letters "S O S" in the sand. Virl removed the spare tire from its wheel, rolled it out onto the desert, mounted a pair of old galoshes on top to have a signal fire ready. He removed the back seat to use as a sunshield, unscrewed the rear-view mirror and put it in his pocket, removed the hub caps and spread them about to catch the night moisture.

The Scott children, with the obedience and discipline often found in large families, helped or sat quietly watching. Only Leland, just four and too young to understand, had begun to whimper, "Me want a drink . . . me want to go home now."

In Moab, Barbara Prescott had cleared away the Scotts' uneaten lunch, waited all afternoon with growing anxiety. "Bill," she told her husband when he came home from work at 5 p.m., "I'm scared. Something's happened to them."

"Oh, honey, I'm sure they're all right," Prescott replied. "I'll go out and round them up."

For two hours he searched around the deserted lookout. Then he drove back to Moab and called Sheriff John Stock. In a few minutes Stock had flashed an alarm to highway patrols and was on his way to lead a search of tourist scenic attractions near Moab. Says Stock, "Even we natives are afraid of that White Rim canyon country. strength left in her at all, she must use it that night to find a way out.

As she sprawled in the dirt, she noticed the children's coloring crayons in the car and remembered the label: "Harmless vegetable dyes – nonpoisonous." Sitting up, she peeled the paper from a red crayon, placed it in her mouth, chewed and swallowed it. The waxy flavor was not too unpleasant.

"Children," she cried. "Look what I've found."

Dutifully the Scott children peeled the four packages of colored crayons and ate them. Then they ate the contents of a tube of white glue which Laura had discovered was made from a milk-product base. The sight of them gravely licking the glue from their fingers drove their mother to dry sobs and she crawled to the other side of the car so they wouldn't see her.

After sunset Virl Scott came from his ledge. His head had cleared a bit and he talked calmly with his wife. She said, "Virl, we all may not get through tomorrow. I want to walk down the road tonight. Maybe I'll find something the children can eat."

"All right, Laura," Scott said. "But take Virlene with you. And let me give you my blessing."

Kneeling with his wife and children in the desert twilight, Virl Scott, as a priest of the Mormon church, blessed them with the ceremony of the laying on of hands, then bade his wife farewell. Leaving him cradling Leland in his arms, Laura and her eldest daughter started out.

MOONLIGHT soon flooded into the canyon transforming rocks, ledges and bush cedars into monstrously misshapen images. The vast emptiness of the desert lay wrapped in an eerie silence. Mother and daughter trudged, stumbled, lay still in the dirt, dragged themselves to their feet and walked on. Whenever the trail forked, they piled stones to mark the spot in case strength remained for them to retrace their steps before morning.

It was after midnight when, footsore and much weaker, they came to a wind sock, a length of silk on a short stake. Somewhere nearby there must be an airfield. In the moonlit shadows Laura Scott thought she saw the silhouette of an aircraft at the crest of a steep broken slope. They hastened toward it, fell and lay in the dirt.

"It's too steep, Momma," gasped Virlene weakly.

"I'm going to leave you for a little while," her mother replied. "Don't be afraid. Daddy has given us his blessing."

Setting her jaw, she dragged herself slowly up toward the airplane. Not until she was almost beside it did she halt. Wings, tail, propeller were a mocking deception of rocks and moonlight.

Turning back, she called, "Virlene!" There was no answer. Half walking, half falling down the slope, Laura Scott wandered on, called again. Suddenly close at hand, her daughter answered, "Here Momma, over here."

They knelt and embraced. It was after 1 a.m. Now Laura Scott, like her husband, had pushed herself to the brink.

"My mind was filled with confusion and I couldn't concentrate," she recalls. "Far off I could hear the children crying. Right before my eyes I could see foaming glasses of cold root beer and smell hamburgers cooking. I knew I was getting delirious. When Virlene said firmly, 'No, Momma, not that way. This is the way to the car,' I just followed."

For three hours they reeled forward, fell, rested and wobbled on, holding hands in the moonlight. Then the moment came when Virlene did not get up. In racked sobs she cried, "Why don't we die here, Momma? I can't face Leland and the others without bringing them any water. I want to die here with you."

Drawing her daughter's head into her lap, she stroked away the dust. "Come on. We'll go back to our family."

As the eastern sky lightened, they came to the car. The children tottered weakly toward them. "Did you find anything, Momma?" they asked.

"No, we didn't," said Laura Scott. Then, without a pause, she added cheerfully, "But I thought of something for us to do. We're going to make a picnic fire and cook up that old cactus just like a barbecue."

It was 4:15 a.m. In a grim parody of a family picnic. Virl Scott and his wife set up the camp stove, sliced the thorny cactus in strips and laid them in the grill. The children, puffy-faced and glassy-eyed, gathered in a circle to watch them as they cooked it into a mass of gummy fibers.

"How is it?" Laura asked Bryan.

The boy thrust a strip between his swollen lips, gagged, choked and spit it out. "Not very good, Momma."

As the daylight crept into the canyon the Scotts blinked and rubbed their eyes. Dehydration and desert glare had affected their vision. Their eyes refused to focus properly.

Herding the family up to the ledge, Virl and Laura Scott prepared for a last-ditch stand. With tire irons they hacked a hole in the shale, buried Leland, now only semi-conscious, up to his neck in it and strapped a pair of welder's goggles over his eyes. Then husband and wife took the tire irons and began hacking and scraping with all their might to deepen the space beneath the ledge. Finally, Virl Scott, half blind, mumbling deliriously, thrust his face into the cool dirt and lay still.

Hands torn and blistered, her vision blurring, Laura Scott continued to dig on by herself, punching feebly at the red dirt and rock, dimly aware that she was probably digging a common grave for her family.

"Does it hurt to die, Momma?" murmured Laurene, 10.

"No, darling," her mother answered. "You'll just go to sleep."

"Will we get a drink of water from the angels in heaven?"

"Yes," said Laura Scott. "Now you just rest. Try to sleep."

SHE WAS STILL jabbing at the dirt with the tire iron when without warning the silver fuselage of an aircraft flashed by a few feet overhead. With a roar that shook the canyon, it shot over the car and disappeared out of sight. In its wake time stood still in a silence that seemed to last an eternity. Then it was back, circling. There was a flash of white as a penciled note fluttered from the plane. It read: "Help Will Come."

There was no place to land. For two hours the Scotts waited. Then Laura saw the two men—walking—running as they sighted the family waving—felt water being splashed upon her. Another hour, then a rescue truck laden with milk, oranges, tomato juice—a bumpy ride to the flat road on which the rescue planes had landed several miles away—the children loaded into Glen Haren's plane—Laura and Virl into the plane of the Civil Air Patrol flyer who had first spotted them—a flight back to the Moab airport where a doctor awaited them.

Examining the Scotts carefully, he shook his head.

"Shall we fly them to a hospital?" Haren asked.

"Heck, no," the doctor said. "We'll take them home, put them in the bathtub, then put them to bed."

To Virl Scott, he added, "You're all in much better shape than you should be. You must have worked at it pretty hard to stay alive."

"We worked at it and we prayed for it," said Scott wearily. Climbing into the car beside his wife, he fell asleep.

"Yes," said Laura Scott. "Now you just rest. Try to sleep."

SHE WAS STILL jabbing at the dirt with the tire iron when without warning the silver fuselage of an aircraft flashed by a few feet overhead. With a roar that shook the canyon, it shot over the car and disappeared out of sight. In its wake time stood still in a silence that seemed to last an eternity. Then it was back, circling. There was a flash of white as a penciled note fluttered from the plane. It read: "Help Will Come."

There was no place to land. For two hours the Scotts waited. Then Laura saw the two men—walking—running as they sighted the family waving—felt water being splashed upon her. Another hour, then a rescue truck laden with milk, oranges, tomato juice—a bumpy ride to the flat road on which the rescue planes had landed several miles away—the children loaded into Glen Haren's plane—Laura and Virl into the plane of the Civil Air Patrol flyer who had first spotted them—a flight back to the Moab airport where a doctor awaited them.

Examining the Scotts carefully, he shook his head.

"Shall we fly them to a hospital?" Haren asked.

"Heck, no," the doctor said. "We'll take them home, put them in the bathtub, then put them to bed."

To Virl Scott, he added, "You're all in much better shape than you should be. You must have worked at it pretty hard to stay alive."

"We worked at it and we prayed for it," said Scott wearily. Climbing into the car beside his wife, he fell asleep.

This Is My Dino

Dean Martin's wife tells how they saved their marriage, the real reason for his split with Jerry Lewis and how he launched a new career as a dramatic actor

by Jeanne Martin

(In this exclusive series, Mrs. Jeanne Martin has told how she, a college beauty queen, met and married the star of the Martin and Lewis comedy team. Dean had come up from an early life of prize fighting and professional gambling to the heights of show business, but some of his old habits hung over into marriage. Always hectic, the Martins' marriage now started down the familiar Hollywood path toward divorce.)

DEAN AND I have been through two separations. The first came three years after we were married. It was brief and silly, the result of a stupid disagreement which would never have amounted to anything had we just been Mr. and Mrs. John Doe.

It started at Ciro's, the night club owned by Herman Hover, at whose house we were married. We left shortly after midnight. Or rather, I found myself outside, waiting for the car, while Dean turned back to say good night to some friends. When he still hadn't come out after 20 minutes, I drove home.

By the time he got a cab and showed up at the house, I was asleep. He was so annoyed that he left and spent the night at a hotel. When he came home the next morning, it was my turn to be hurt. I moved in with my mother and Dean went to live with his show-business partner and buddy, Jerry Lewis.

Without the inevitable publicity, we could have ironed out our problem. But with gossip columnists turning it into a major battle, it proved more difficult. Our stubborness didn't help.

We wouldn't even talk to one another. Instead, Jerry called "on his own" to chat with me. In the course of our conversation he'd hint how sorry Dean was for what happened. I would get my messages of regret to Dean the same way, until we finally realized how ridiculous we were acting, and made up.

The next separation, four years later, could not be ironed out that easily. The strain of his growing disagreements with Jerry was beginning to show on Dean. Usually patient beyond words, he became curt and uncommunicative. He wouldn't discuss his problems with me. He excluded me from his thoughts. I had become the little blonde wife who was to run his house, look after the children and be exhibited at public functions.

Finally I reached the point where I could take it no longer and moved to Palm Springs with the children. Convinced that only the most drastic action would help, I gave Dean an ultimatum: convince me that I am part of your life again or give me a divorce.

Dean didn't believe I'd stick to my threat until I consulted a lawyer. Then he knew I was dead serious.

About three months after I left him, he came to Palm Springs to discuss a reconciliation. We talked more during those three days than we had during the previous three years. He finally persuaded us to go home with him.

Dean didn't disappoint me. He learned to share, to give of himself and include me in his thoughts and plans.

It happened none too soon, because Dean was about to face the biggest crisis of his career – the split-up of his eight-year partnership with Jerry Lewis.

DEAN AND JERRY had parted a couple of times before they made it final. Yet it still came as a blow to Dean. Although I was never close to either Jerry or Patti – we seldom visited each other's homes – I was sorry nevertheless. Not because Dean had lost Jerry as a professional partner, but as a friend. They used to have such fun working together and they complemented each other.

I know clowning was part of their act, but they had real fun themselves at nobody's expense. When they clipped off an unsuspecting victim's tie, tore rooms to shreds, threw manuscripts out the window or splashed paint on suits, they always made up for it generously.

They kidded each other just as mercilessly. For one of his birthdays, Dean got a huge wooden box from Jerry, out of which jumped a midget yelling, "Jerry said you owned everything but a human being. So here I am." Dean retaliated by sending Jerry mummy wrapping gauze and 50 pounds of mustache wax.

If anyone dared do or say anything against either of the partners, the other promptly jumped to his defense. When a fellow in a St. Petersburg bar made a crack about Jerry's religion, Dean knocked him clear across the room into a glass cabinet full of liquor. It cost him several hundred dollars for damages, but he'd have done it again if the fellow had uttered one more derogatory remark about Jerry.

Jerry's fondness for Dean was equally evident. I will never forget the day he learned that Dean and I were expecting our first child.

We had been so anxious to have children that when I didn't get pregnant for two years, we talked about adopting a baby. The moment I found out we were expecting, I phoned Dean's office at Paramount. He was out, but Jerry was there to take the call. When I blurted out the good news, he was so thrilled for us that he begged me to let him tell Dean. It took me several minutes to convince him that it would be only fair to leave that happy task to the prospective mother!

What brought about their difficulties, in spite of their long affection for one another? Not Dean's unwillingness to do his share of the work, as Jerry had stated and probably believed himself. Those constant inferences that Jerry was a human dynamo while Dean was more of a loafer hurt and angered my husband.

True, Dean was seldom early for a performance. On the other hand, during their long association he never missed a show, and only once, when they appeared at the Paramount Theater in New York City, was he late.

He had returned to the hotel during his one-and-a-half hour break between shows, eaten supper and taken a nap. Unfortunately he didn't wake up in time. When he got back to the theater, Jerry had done three-fourths of the show by himself. Dean was genuinely sorry – at first. He became resentful when Jerry kept reminding him of the incident for a solid year!

The constant off-stage clowning also began to wear on Dean. He is casual, relaxed and uninhibited. But he doesn't think he has to be funny all the time, as does Jerry. And he didn't want to waste time clowning around the sets and sound stages before rehearsals and shows. He was willing to work when there was work to be done. The rest of

I told him that as far as I was concerned, for once, I was all in favor of a gamble.

At last he made up his mind to attempt a new career, at the age of 40.

His first solo film, "10,000 Bedrooms," was something of a compromise. He played himself, sang a few songs and walked through the script pretty much as he had done before, except that he wasn't playing straight man to Jerry any more.

"The Young Lions" presented more of a challenge. Dean worked hard to get the part and, against the advice of well-meaning friends, accepted it for less money than he could have gotten for other films. He didn't sing in it and had some dramatic scenes.

The real test, as far as he was concerned, came with "Rio Bravo," his first thoroughly dramatic role. From the moment he signed the contract, he was tense and nervous and, once again, full of doubts about his ability. But he got a wonderful break in director Howard Hawks and in his costar John Wayne. Both went out of their way to be helpful.

Dean was particularly worried about the scene in which Wayne saves his life, only to have Dean turn on him in a fit of embarrassment and anger, and slap him – and then break into tears.

It was to have been one of the first scenes filmed – till Wayne talked Hawks into saving it for the last to give Dean a chance to grow into the part.

Dean graduated from the picture with all the self-assurance he needed to accept any role no matter how demanding. He breezed through "Some Came Running," like a veteran. When Paramount offered him the difficult part of the talented but opportunistic stage director in "Career," he never doubted he could do it.

Since then he has become one of the busiest actors in Hollywood, with night-club and recording commitments for the next five years, plus three new films and four television shows scheduled for the next 12 months, alone. These include Columbia's "Who Was That Lady?" and MGM's "The Bells Are Ringing." He also participates in Dino's, the Sunset Strip restaurant he owns with Morry Samuels. He stops by three or four times a week to chat with the guests, sing and make sure everything is going well.

Most gratifying to Dean is his newly found enjoyment in his work. He loves being his own boss, responsible to no one but himself.

DEAN HAS changed in a number of ways lately. He doesn't jump into business ventures quite as eagerly and blindly as he once did. He evaluates them more cautiously, just as he looks after himself more carefully.

He used to exercise sporadically. He played golf because he loved the game, sometimes every day. Other times he did nothing more strenuous for weeks than climb into his car and drive to and from the studio.

Now he swims regularly; we are in the process of building a tennis court in the back yard; he works out in the gym. As a result, he's in better physical shape at 42 than he was at 32!

But whatever the changes, he's still a boy at heart. I think he always will be.

When I asked him if he wanted another birthday party or to celebrate quietly at home, he burst out, "Of course I want a party! And I want a birthday cake and I want to blow out the candles."

So we had a hundred or so friends over on June 7, including Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, the Sammy Kahns, Jerry and Jackie Gershwin, the Kirk Douglases and Ernie and Edie Kovaks. We square danced, had a huge cake, and Dean blew out the candles.

But while he went about his birthday with all the enthusiasm of a six-year-old, I knew that, for the first time, he felt secure. And so did I. It's taken us 10 years. It was worth it.

Playing London's Palladium in 1953, Jerry Lewis mugged while Dean tried to sing.

Catch a Car! Ida M. Pardue

"Catch a Car" is a speedy game if you are riding along a city street.

Each player needs a piece of paper and a pencil. Each writes the name of one car on his paper – Ford, Plymouth, Chevrolet, and so on.

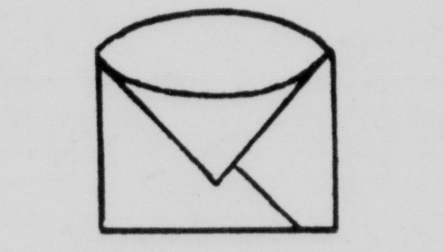

Players take turns "catching" the cars coming from the other way. If a player has written Ford on his paper, and the first car to approach is a Ford, he scores one point. If the car is not the right one, he scores nothing, of course, and the next car to pass is the next player's turn. The first player to score five cars wins the game.

HUNTING C. O. D.

by JACK DENTON SCOTT

Sportsmen have an answer to the problem of increasing cost and decreasing game —it's the shooting preserve where every nimrod has a chance at varied birds

RECENTLY I came back from hunting with a mixed bag of pheasants, quail, chukar partridge and several fat mallard ducks. Time expended on the hunt: less than six hours, including travel! Money spent: less than $50!

Normally anyone hunting these different species would spend a lot more time and cash because, in the wild, the birds are scattered throughout the country.

The answer, in my case, was the shooting preserve, a privately owned and state-licensed area of some 200 acres where, for a reasonable fee, pen-raised, artificially propagated birds are released for gunning.

Preserves are not exactly new, but their growth is. Where 22 states permitted this kind of shooting in 1954, now 41 states approve it. In the 1954-55 season there were 620 private and 136 public shooting preserves, while last season there were 869 private and 338 public ones, a sizable increase!

For those of you who might think such hunting is a "set-up," or "fish-in-a-barrel" shooting, let me point out that I've shot wild birds in many places—India, Cuba, Mexico, Canada —and can honestly say that all the preserve birds I got flew excellently. The pheasants were the equal of those in the Dakotas and the mallards just as speedy as those I've shot at in Louisiana. The quail in covey weren't in the same league with the wild Alabama bobwhites, but they were still fast enough to give me a hard time; the chukars won't put the ruffed grouse out of business, but I missed the first three when they burst off the ground and swerved behind bushy cedars.

The need for shooting preserves is very real in today's sports-minded world. Twenty years ago there were 7 million hunting licenses sold annually; today there are 16 million, and the sport is still growing. But game supply and places to hunt have not kept pace with this broadening activity.

As this is written, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service tells me that the wild duck population is so low that the limit on mallards and canvasback has been reduced by half and there is thought about cutting the season drastically, perhaps closing it.

Because of scarce game, devoted sportsmen like Antoine Gilly, president of the French hunting club, Club des Chasseurs de New York, no longer spend time and money chasing around the country in a sometimes hopeless search for birds. He and his group have found the answer in the Joe Cox Game Farm, 600 varied acres, in the Quaker Hill section of Pawling, N. Y.

Gilly puts it like this: "Before preserves, we had to train and maintain our own dogs and transport them to the game fields. We had to wait until a certain season to hunt quail, then travel a great distance to find them; the same with ducks, partridge and pheasant. Now, what used to take weeks, and in some cases, months of arranging, travel and just plain looking for the game, can be wrapped up in about eight hours. And it all costs 10 times less than I've spent going after ducks in Arkansas."

IN ADDITION to the advantage of being located almost as conveniently as your drive-in movie or shopping center, preserves have broad seasons, extending in most states from Sept. 15 until March 15. On many, the only license you need is the preserve tag which costs $1; on others you need the regular state hunting license. A few have membership requirements, and you pay so much a year in dues and get your birds at a reduced rate. These restrict shooting to members.

Prices for birds, procedure and species of game vary. Some stock only pheasants and ask $5 for each bird they release, whether you bag it or not; others ask that you pay for the birds you get. The price norm is $5 for pheasants, $3 to $4 for ducks and partridge, $2.50 to $3 for quail. There are no hidden charges. Guides and skilled dogs are furnished free.

On most preserves, if you only want to spend $10 and hunt an hour or so, that's your privilege. But it's wise to write to the preserve nearest you and ask about requirements.

Last year, "cash-on-delivery" hunting accounted for 772,723 game birds harvested on 308 preserves. Harry Hampton of the Sportsmen's Service Bureau, a man who has done much to develop and improve the shooting-preserve idea, believes that the figure will be well over a million in 1960 — a figure sportsmen concerned with decreasing game and increasing costs will gladly take aim on.

STOP DOSING CONSTIPATION WITH DRUGS

An appetizing breakfast food can be more effective than harsh laxatives

Corrects irregularity due to lack of bulk

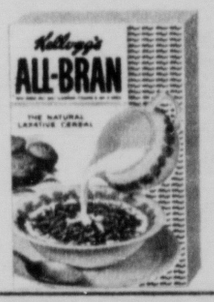

Do you doctor yourself with harsh laxatives whenever you miss a morning? If you do, you are probably dosing yourself more and more often.

Yes, laxative drugs can be habit-forming. And if your constipation is due to lack of bulk in your diet, they can do nothing to correct the cause of the trouble. Relief is only temporary.

It should be welcome news that now there is a good-food way to break the laxative habit once and for all. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way.

Millions of people who were once addicted to drug-type laxatives now stay on schedule naturally by eating a small serving of Kellogg's All-Bran each day. This is a good-tasting whole bran cereal—and bran is nature's best bulk-forming food. A half-cup with milk gives you all the good bulk food you need for daily regularity.

HUNTING C. O. D.

by JACK DENTON SCOTT

Sportsmen have an answer to the problem of increasing cost and decreasing game —it's the shooting preserve where every nimrod has a chance at varied birds

RECENTLY I came back from hunting with a mixed bag of pheasants, quail, chukar partridge and several fat mallard ducks. Time expended on the hunt: less than six hours, including travel! Money spent: less than $50!

Normally anyone hunting these different species would spend a lot more time and cash because, in the wild, the birds are scattered throughout the country.

The answer, in my case, was the shooting preserve, a privately owned and state-licensed area of some 200 acres where, for a reasonable fee, pen-raised, artificially propagated birds are released for gunning.

Preserves are not exactly new, but their growth is. Where 22 states permitted this kind of shooting in 1954, now 41 states approve it. In the 1954-55 season there were 620 private and 136 public shooting preserves, while last season there were 869 private and 338 public ones, a sizable increase!

For those of you who might think such hunting is a "set-up," or "fish-in-a-barrel" shooting, let me point out that I've shot wild birds in many places—India, Cuba, Mexico, Canada —and can honestly say that all the preserve birds I got flew excellently. The pheasants were the equal of those in the Dakotas and the mallards just as speedy as those I've shot at in Louisiana. The quail in covey weren't in the same league with the wild Alabama bobwhites, but they were still fast enough to give me a hard time; the chukars won't put the ruffed grouse out of business, but I missed the first three when they burst off the ground and swerved behind bushy cedars.

The need for shooting preserves is very real in today's sports-minded world. Twenty years ago there were 7 million hunting licenses sold annually; today there are 16 million, and the sport is still growing. But game supply and places to hunt have not kept pace with this broadening activity.

As this is written, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service tells me that the wild duck population is so low that the limit on mallards and canvasback has been reduced by half and there is thought about cutting the season drastically, perhaps closing it.

Because of scarce game, devoted sportsmen like Antoine Gilly, president of the French hunting club, Club des Chasseurs de New York, no longer spend time and money chasing around the country in a sometimes hopeless search for birds. He and his group have found the answer in the Joe Cox Game Farm, 600 varied acres, in the Quaker Hill section of Pawling, N. Y.

Gilly puts it like this: "Before preserves, we had to train and maintain our own dogs and transport them to the game fields. We had to wait until a certain season to hunt quail, then travel a great distance to find them; the same with ducks, partridge and pheasant. Now, what used to take weeks, and in some cases, months of arranging, travel and just plain looking for the game, can be wrapped up in about eight hours. And it all costs 10 times less than I've spent going after ducks in Arkansas."

IN ADDITION to the advantage of being located almost as conveniently as your drive-in movie or shopping center, preserves have broad seasons, extending in most states from Sept. 15 until March 15. On many, the only license you need is the preserve tag which costs $1; on others you need the regular state hunting license. A few have membership requirements, and you pay so much a year in dues and get your birds at a reduced rate. These restrict shooting to members.

Prices for birds, procedure and species of game vary. Some stock only pheasants and ask $5 for each bird they release, whether you bag it or not; others ask that you pay for the birds you get. The price norm is $5 for pheasants, $3 to $4 for ducks and partridge, $2.50 to $3 for quail. There are no hidden charges. Guides and skilled dogs are furnished free.

On most preserves, if you only want to spend $10 and hunt an hour or so, that's your privilege. But it's wise to write to the preserve nearest you and ask about requirements.

Last year, "cash-on-delivery" hunting accounted for 772,723 game birds harvested on 308 preserves. Harry Hampton of the Sportsmen's Service Bureau, a man who has done much to develop and improve the shooting-preserve idea, believes that the figure will be well over a million in 1960 — a figure sportsmen concerned with decreasing game and increasing costs will gladly take aim on.

STOP DOSING CONSTIPATION WITH DRUGS

An appetizing breakfast food can be more effective than harsh laxatives

Corrects irregularity due to lack of bulk

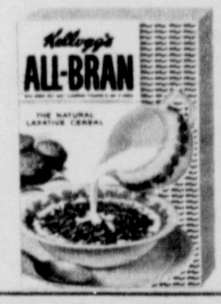

Do you doctor yourself with harsh laxatives whenever you miss a morning? If you do, you are probably dosing yourself more and more often.

Yes, laxative drugs can be habit-forming. And if your constipation is due to lack of bulk in your diet, they can do nothing to correct the cause of the trouble. Relief is only temporary.

It should be welcome news that now there is a good-food way to break the laxative habit once and for all. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way.

Millions of people who were once addicted to drug-type laxatives now stay on schedule naturally by eating a small serving of Kellogg's All-Bran each day.
